FLYIN' JENNY

ABOARD AN ATC PASSENGER PLANE HEADING TOWARD THE ORIENT···

WHERE ARE WE GOING TO LAND?

WE AREN'T··· AT LEAST, FOR A WHILE.

ONE MOTOR'S OUT, ISN'T IT?

YEH··BUT THE SKIPPER FEATHERED THE PROP AND IS GOING ON. ONE MOTOR'S ENOUGH ··UNLESS THE WEATHER··

8-30-43

WHEW! WHERE'D YOU PICK UP THE CROWN JEWELS?

WANT IT? ··OW!

AIR'S GETTING ROUGH! THAT'S NOT TOO GOOD!

WHAT GOES ON, SABOTAGE IN THE WEATHER BUREAU?

WE'VE SURE PICKED UP A DILLY OF A CROSSWIND REGULAR DERN GALE!

I'LL BET YOU JINXED US, YOU PRETTY LITTLE RASCAL.

LET'S MAKE A WISH ON IT THAT THE OTHER MOTOR STAYS PUT!

8-31-43

I WISH I'D NEVER SEEN THAT OLD DROOP WHO GAVE IT TO ME-IS WHAT I WISH.

WE'RE GOING TO LAND IN THE DESERT, SO WE'D BETTER START WISHING FOR SOME CAMELS!

9-1-43.

IF WE'RE WHERE I THINK WE ARE, WE MAY BE IN FOR A HOT-FOOT, MAJOR.

AND NOT JUST FROM THE DESERT SANDS

WE GOT DOWN, ALL RIGHT. AND JUST IN TIME.

AND NO FOOLIN'. THAT OTHER MOTOR SOUNDS LIKE A BULL-FROG WITH HAY FEVER

I DON'T KNOW WHERE WE ARE··MAYBE YOU'D BETTER KEEP THAT TRINKET OUT OF SIGHT.

I'M GOIN' TO BURY IT UNDER A CACTUS AND FORGET IT··IT'S STRICTLY BAD NEWS!

TOUGH LUCK, MAJOR. GAS LINES PLUGGED?

I HAVE A HUNCH··· GOING TO HAVE A LOOK-SEE!

9-2-43

I'M A FAIR EMERGENCY MECHANIC··· CAN I HELP?

DON'T THINK SO, THANKS··ACTS LIKE FOULED SCREEN TO THE CARBURETOR··· COULD BE WAX!

DIRTY WORK AT THE LAST SERVICE STOP?

COULD BE··I'LL SOON FIND OUT

HEY, FOLKS. COMPANY'S COMIN'.

YOU AREN'T GETTING SUN SPOTS BEFORE THE EYES, ARE YOU BABE, DARLING?

NOT ANY! I SAW A CAMEL'S NOGGIN OVER THERE BEYOND THAT SAND DUNE·· THEN IT DISAPPEARED.

9-3-43

THE FILTERS ARE PLUGGED WITH WAX··· THAT'S IN THE GAS!

WE CAN CLEAN 'EM··AND GET ANOTHER FEW MINUTES FLYING··AND EVERY MINUTE COUNTS IN THIS COUNTRY!

···BEYOND THE SAND DUNE.

THEY ARE WELL ARMED. WE MUST WAIT UNTIL NIGHT FALL. THE PLANE WILL RISE NO MORE!

WHAT'S THE OFFICIAL STATUS OF T— RIGHT NOW, MAJOR?

ON THE FENCE. WE CAN'T RISK BEING CAUGHT, ····· MIGHT BE INTERNED.

9-4-43

WELL I DITCHED THAT RED GLASSWARE, HONEY·· IT CAN HAUNT THE LIZARDS FROM NOW ON.

I WISH YOU'D KEEP IT BABE. I HAVE A FUNNY FEELING IT HAS SOMETHING TO DO WITH OUR FUTURE··SOMETHING IMPORTANT!

OKAY·· BUT ARE YOU BEING PSYCHIC··OR JUST SUPERSTITIOUS?

I HONESTLY DON'T KNOW··· LISTEN! SOMETHING MOVING·· WALKING THROUGH THE SAND!

Three Italian Ports Fall to British Army

Opposition Weak, Many Prisoners Are Taken In Advance Along Shore Of Southern Italy.

of the expedition, most of whom were believed to be Italian.

(A German communique said German as well as Italian troops were in action against the invaders.)

The force which landed at Reggio hit the port from both sides and soon overran its air field south of the city, which was usable by fighters.

Massed British artillery and machine guns laid down a barrage with the added strength of American field artillery batteries—apparently the only United States participation in the ground activity.

The Italian navy failed to challenge the landing, and the continuous air umbrella provided by American, British, Canadian and South African planes found practically no opposition. Only five enemy planes were shot down during the day, against a loss of one Allied plane.

Civilians in the occupied area were found as friendly as those in Sicily. They lined the roads and streets, waving and cheering as the troops moved up. Airmen over the area saw several farmhouses with white sheets spread on the ground in token of a desire to surrender.

While the first troops consolidated their bridgehead with the unloading of supplies, ammunition, rations and equipment, other forces raced inland where the slopes of the 6,000-foot Aspromonte range.

Aloft, American Mitchell mediums attacked airdromes in southern Italy, while assault planes hit gun positions. Wellington bombers raided air fields at Capaua and Caop Di Chino near Naples last night and suffered no loss.

While the northwest African air forces smashed at enemy communications and defenses in southern Italy, American Liberator bombers from Middle-Eastern bases ranged far to the north and spread destruction through railway installations at Sulmona, 75 miles east of Rome, in daylight yesterday.

Swarms of Axis fighters intercepted the Liberators, but 27 were shot down. Six Allied planes were lost in the Sulmona raid and other unspecified operations of the Middle-Eastern air forces.

Front dispatches disclosed that battle-hardened British and Canadian shock troops secured the first Allied beachhead on the European continent yesterday virtually without opposition. Residents of one area said German troops stationed there had gone north into the hills three days before the invasion.

A few artillery salvoes from a couple of Italian pillboxes apparently were the only shots fired by the enemy in the initial stages of the invasion and the occupants of the pillboxes soon emerged with hands upraised in surrender.

Soon other Italian troops were being rounded up in wholesale batches reminiscent of the Sicilian campaign. Many came out of the hills without attempting resistance, ready and anxious to surrender.

The invasion beaches had not even been mined, front reports said, and the Allied communique asserted that enemy demolitions were "largely ineffective."

"The advance is continuing," the communique said. "A large number of prisoners has been taken."

The initial landings, secured under a barrage of thousands of artillery shells and bombs that knocked out most of the Axis gun batteries, were near Reggio Calabria, 8½ miles southeast of Messina, the communique revealed.

The troops then pushed seven miles north and captured San Giovanni, only four miles directly across a narrow strait from Messina. Both Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni were mainland termini for ferry lines from Messina.

With the establishment of the beachheads, the Allies continued to pour reinforcements ashore in a steady stream. Hundreds of landing craft shuttled back and forth across Messina strait without opposition, bringing men, tanks, guns and supplies.

(The London Daily Telegraph quoted Axis reports that Anglo-Canadian troops landed at upwards of 50 points opposite Sicily. The London daily mail said that one Allied column had reached Scilla, 12 miles north of Reggio Calabria.)

(There still was no Allied confirmation of Italian frontier reports that German troops hurriedly were evacuating the tip of the Italian boot to escape entrapment by possible Allied landings farther north or that American forces had begun landing in Sardinia.)

First reports indicated that the Allies had established themselves firmly on the mainland somewhere between Cape Pellaro, just south of Reggio Calabria, and Scilla, some 12 miles north of Reggio Calabria. An Allied spokesman said yesterday that the landings were made on beaches on the narrowest part of Messina strait.

Italians Apathetic Over Invasion

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 3—(Delayed)—(AP)—The initial surprise over the Allied landing in Calabria apparently passed quickly in Italy today and was followed by almost a spirit of apathy as the Italians realized that the hoped for peace was not on the immediate horizon.

A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Rome said "there is no particular uneasiness in the capital."

The Rome correspondent of the Tribune de Geneve reported that the Italians have now realized that "nothing less than a miracle" could spare the country the tragic lot of being transformed into a battlefield.

A dispatch to the Zurich Die Tat from the Italian frontier said the first reaction in Italy to the invasion was one of "complete calm, almost indifference," adding that in official Italian circles there was still the impression that the landing was a diversion while the real invasion would be launched at some other point.

A Milan dispatch to the Bern newspaper Der Bund said the Italian people had reckoned on an imminent attack on the mainland but nonetheless had hoped that the Badoglio government would succeed in withdrawing the country from the war before the Allies set foot on the peninsula.

Rome Begs For Practicable Peace

LONDON—(INS)—The Rome radio in a broadcast directed to Britain said today that Italy was willing to accept any "just and practicable" plan for peace.

The broadcast, commenting on reiterated Allied demands for unconditional surrender, declared:

"If we were given half a chance, we could really do things in a serious way. Anything that could possibly sound just and practicable to us we should accept."

Realism In War News Approved By FDR

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Responsible quarters revealed today that President Roosevelt has approved a government "news" policy which will strip away the camouflage and present the blood, sweat and tears of war to the American public.

The White House action, it was said, puts an end to principles and procedures in the handling of news which, consciously or unconsciously, have tended to maintain war on a lofty plane without driving home its terrific cost and brutality.

In the future, these quarters disclosed, the keynote of the government's war news policy will be "realism."

"We are going to show that war is not a series of parades through conquered cities with the populace lined up to shower our troops with garlands of flowers," one official said.

Mr. Roosevelt's decision was reached in consultation with representatives of the army and navy and the Office of War Information, all of which are reported to be in general agreement on the news approach to the portrayal of war information.

Mrs. FDR Says Nazi Defeatism Growing

CANBERRA, Australia—(AP)—Defeatism is widespread and growing in Germany, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt declared in an address today, and, as an example, she read the uncensored advice of a German mother to her soldier son to surrender that he might stay alive.

The wife of the United States president spoke at a luncheon given in her honor by the commonwealth government in Parliament House.

The tide has turned in the favor of United Nations. Mrs. Roosevelt continued, but she warned that this should not mean relaxation of war effort or reduction in production.

Prime Minister John Curtin introduced Mrs. Roosevelt.

Reds Report Attack Without Comment

LONDON—(UPP)—Absence of an official Russian statement indicated today the Italian invasion so far has not fulfilled the Soviet definition of a second front—one which will draw off 50 to 60 Nazi divisions.

Radio Moscow broadcast the special communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa last night to inform the Russians of the invasion without comment.

RAPS AID PLAN

Physician Charges Maternity Help Regiments Doctors.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Dr. Charles W. Pavey, of Columbus, today charged in editorial in the Bulletin of the Columbus Academy of Medicine that the federal maternity aid plan for wives and babies of servicemen was instituted by the New Deal to regiment the medical profession.

Pavey also charged Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Francis Perkins, secretary of labor, with "waving away" the relief that he said could have been administered by the army and navy relief societies.

LOSS HIGH

Estimates Run to $2,000,000 As Refinery Burns.

MARCUS HOOK, Pa.—(INS)—A general alarm fire, accompanied by numerous explosions of naphtha, today destroyed the entire grease-processing building of the Pure Oil Refining company at Marcus Hook.

The flames were declared under control at 9:30 a. m., five hours after the arrival of firemen.

First unofficial estimates of damage were set at from $500,000 to $2,000,000, as large amounts of valuable oil processing machinery, grease and oil fed the flames.

SCIENTIST

"Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday. It will have for the Golden Text: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace" (Psalms 37:37).

Included in the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon are the following correlative passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ:" (Romans 8:-16, 17 to second:). "God is the Principle of man, and man is the idea of God. Hence man is not mortal nor material." "Learn this, O mortal, and earnestly seek the spiritual status of man, which is outside of all material selfhood." (Science and Health, P. 476).

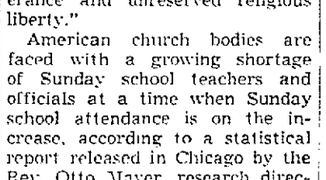
The great Bible expositor, George Adam Smith, was once present when a group of clergymen were discussing ways and means of interesting non-church-going people. After listening to several speakers who bewailed the indifference and apathy of the multitude, he said, "Our greatest problem is not the non-church-going class but the non-going church. That remark was significant, profound and true. One would be safe in saying that a more enthusiastic church would inevitably mean a greater following and a much wider influence. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?
—D. Carl Yoder.

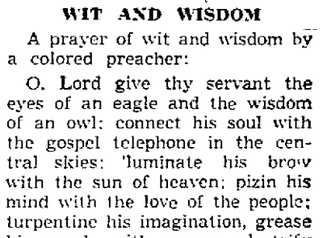


A change has been made in one part of the pledge to the American flag. Under old rules and regulations persons giving the pledge of allegiance were to extend the right hand, palm upward at the words "to the flag." Now the right hand remains over the heart throughout the recital of the pledge. The change was made Dec. 22, 1942.

A marked increase in understanding and tolerance toward Christianity is being shown in Turkey, it was learned in Stockholm. One reason for this widespread sale, during the the past year and a half, is a new Turkish translation of the Bible. With the growing freedom allowed to individuals under the present Turkish regime, more and more Mohammedans are becoming acquainted with Christian ideas.

Assurance that the Soviet government intends to maintain the separation of church and state in Russia was given by the new Russian ambassador to Mexico, at a press conference in Mexico City. "One thing that can be said with certainty," said the ambassador, "is that the clergy of all faiths in Russia have shown a highly patriotic attitude and that the government proposes to maintain the separation of church and state under conditions of tolerance and unreserved religious liberty."

American church bodies are faced with a growing shortage of Sunday school teachers and officials at a time when Sunday school attendance is on the increase, according to a statistical report released in Chicago by the Rev. Otto Mayer, research director of the International Council of Religious Education. Dr. Mayer declared, "Since these figures are based upon reports for years prior to our entry into the war, the conclusion must be drawn that our adult men and women have not accepted the responsibility for teaching Christianity to the children and youth in proportion to the growth in attendance."



National and international justice is now a current theme. World-wide justice is a product of social, economic, and political justice at home. Justice has to do with the race problem, the class problem, problems of poverty and wealth. Likely there is practiced some injustices in your home, in your society, in your town. What are you doing to cause justice to reign?

WIT AND WISDOM

A prayer of wit and wisdom by a colored preacher:

O, Lord give thy servant the eyes of an eagle and the wisdom of an owl; connect his soul with the gospel telephone in the central skies; 'luminate his brow with the sun of heaven; pizin his mind with the love of the people; turpentine his imagination, grease his words with power; electrify his brain with the lightin' of the word; put perpetual motion in his arms; fill him plum full of the dynamite of thy glory; anoint him all over with the kerosene of thy salvation and set him on fire. AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow and Monday—be wreckless, not reckless.

The WPB recently authorized manufacture of an additional 59,378 baby carriages—which sounds like rather close figuring.

Answering a question: Senator Robert A. Taft will be 54 years old next Wednesday. He was born in Cincinnati, September 8, 1889.

First Step In Invasion Program

NOW THAT Italy has been chosen as the first point for land invasion of Europe, interest centers, for the moment, on the increased probability of that country making an almost immediate move to get out of the war.

With the overthrow of Mussolini and the obvious preference of a majority of the Italian people to break with their obnoxious Nazi partners, there had been hope that Italy would surrender without further ado, but this was prevented by fear of reprisals during the time of strong German occupation of the northern part of the country.

Italian resistance to Allied landings has apparently been so weak as to indicate welcome rather than desire to repel the invaders and the recent plea of Pope Pius for peace, coupled with a denunciation of oppressors, could scarcely have failed to strengthen determination of the Italian people to withdraw from the hopeless struggle into which they were plunged by Mussolini.

While the invasion of Italy is being interpreted as a minor incident in the general Allied war strategy, its potentialities have an importance that should not be minimized.

Harvest Show for Gardeners

RICHLAND COUNTY'S Victory Garden Harvest Show, to be held September 11 and 12 in the Armory, will offer opportunity for comparison of products of many of the Victory gardens on which much time and energy have been expended in recent months.

One of the purposes of a county fair will be served by this exhibit—that of displaying products of the soil and stimulating interest in farming and gardening.

Classes of exhibits in which prizes are offered include fresh, canned and dried vegetables and fruits, garden flowers, house plants, garden photographs, bird houses, and special sections for industrial group exhibits and for entries by children between the ages of 6 and 12.

The harvest of crops from Victory gardens, large and small, will be effective in materially easing the food supply problem this year, and while there have been some failures and occasional discouragement, the results, in the main, have been so satisfactory as to indicate that 1944 will be another year of extensive leisure-time gardening.

None too soon for Victory gardeners to be looking over the list of classes to which entries are invited and to decide on participation in the harvest show.

'Lose No Time,' Gen. Lahm Advises

WHILE forward-looking Mansfielders may need no urging to do everything possible to assure expansion of airport facilities for this community, it is gratifying to know that so competent an authority on aeronautics as Major General Frank P. Lahm is enthusiastic in his support of the advance step which it is hoped will soon be taken.

General Lahm's keen interest in aviation and his close contact with development in that field of transportation places him in position to appreciate the importance of cities making ready to meet new conditions. His sustained interest in Mansfield, which he still fondly regards as his "home town," gives assurance of his sincerity in advising that no time be lost in taking advantage of the present opportunity.

Youthful Workers Return To School

START OF SCHOOL this year will give more than ordinary emphasis to the "labor shortage" situation, because of the unusually large number of young people of school age who have been employed in stores, offices and other capacities during the summer vacation.

It is proper, of course, that schooling should not be dropped by boys and girls before completion of their high school course, but it may be wondered if some revision of schedules might not make it possible for students above the age of 16 to hold a part-time, morning or afternoon job, until the employment shortage is relieved.

Some women whose home duties make it impossible to take full-time positions might also devise a plan for taking a part-time job in store or office, which would serve to bridge over the present need.

The condition developing in some places of business is reported as being so serious that ability of at least a few to continue service impresses proprietors as doubtful.

How Labor Day Observance Started

LABOR DAY is perhaps the only American holiday owing its origin to the idea of one man. Peter J. McGuire, its originator, is unknown to millions who benefit from his thought.

As general secretary of the New York City Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, McGuire suggested on May 8, 1882, that a day be set aside to commemorate the achievements of labor. He named the first Monday in September as suitable, chiefly because the weather was likely to be fine and it came nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving. The Central Labor union of the city took up his idea, and that year saw the first celebration of Labor day. For some reason, however, it took place on the first Tuesday in September, and not on the first Monday.

Unions in other cities adopted the practice and before long states began to act. The first was Oregon in 1887, the last Wyoming, which did not fix a holiday until 1923. Congress made it legal for the District of Columbia and the territories in 1894.

One psychologist advises that you let your children know the whole truth about your financial problems—and, come to think of it, maybe the bad news should also be broken to your wife.

Eastern motorists are now permitted to do as much "pleasure driving" as possible on a gallon and a half of gasoline a week.

"If we're wrong, we'll try something else," as the man remarked when he set fire to his house to rid it of mice.

UNITY AGAINST NAZI GANGSTERS

Invasion of Italy Necessary as Move Toward Real Second Front

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE INVASION of Italy is a further heartening exhibition of already great and rapidly growing Allied striking power, and we are warranted in having full confidence in the outcome.

We shouldn't make the mistake, however, of pinning our expectations too high on the assumption that this is the anxiously awaited continental operation—the much debated "second front" — which one of these days, in conjunction with the Russians, most certainly will create the giant vise which will break Herr Hitler's bones.

This is a big show, but it isn't THE big show. Indeed, it is emphasized at Allied headquarters in North Africa that it isn't the opening of a "second front" but just continuation of the campaign which was begun there and was continued with the conquest of Sicily.

Invasion of Italy is a job which had to be done, and it will be immensely useful in many ways. Still I have a hunch that there are other things the Allies would rather be doing right now than cleaning up this peninsula which is merely an appendage of the continent and cannot bring the western United Nations armies immediately to grips with the Nazi forces within Hitler's European fortress.

Indeed, it's my suggestion that we watchers keep one eye on the unfolding of the drama in Italy, and the other cocked in the direction of other possible invasion points. The Allies have more than this one trick in their old kit bags.

The invading forces swarmed ashore in lower Italy with the expectation of encountering stiff resistance, and according to the Algiers radio the British and Canadian troops of the Eighth army—spearhead of the operation—already have run into it.

Most of the opposition was looked for from the Boche, but it seemed unlikely that they would be in great force in southern Italy. In the north of the peninsula, however, the Germans are reported to be holding the line of the Po river in strength, and likely have defensive positions south of there, as well.

ONE of the most important and interesting operations in connection with the invasion wa the Allied bombing of the bridges in the Brenner Pass, which is the great gateway through the Alps into Italy from Germany. This has been the main invasion route into Italy from the north through the centuries. Its railway and highway have provided the thoroughfare for Axis transport and a crippling of this communication would be a calamity for the Germans.

One of the main assets the Allies will acquire by overrunning Italy will be air bases in the north from which they can extend their bombing of the eastern part of the reich and occupied territories.

Another great prize would be the acquisition of the Italian navy - greatly whittled down through years of war but still containing many useful warships. There is hope that the fleet may be taken over intact.

Of course, knocking Italy out of the war represents an immense gain, but the country already is virtually impotent from the standpoint of offensive warfare.

Thus the invasion represents a mopping up process. Still, this will have its moral effect and will further weaken the Axis grip on the Balkans. When we have driven the Nazis out of northern Italy, we also shall have gained a bridgehead of sorts from which we could move into southern France and the Balkans.

We shall have to take the bitter with the sweet, though. Among the liabilities we shall acquire if we overrun all Italy will be the necessity of putting a force of several hundred thousand men into the country for garrison duty.

The Allies also will have to help feed 40,000,000 hungry Italian mouths, and find the cargo vessels on which to move supplies to the little country.

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Take Half a Loaf

THE MOST tragic failures in life aren't those who've deliberately done wrong—. All too often, they are the stubborn, serious folk who insist on doing everything Just Right!

The people who refuse to take a half loaf when they've set their heart upon a whole one!

Plain bit of truth, isn't it? But it takes most of us many a weary year to learn it. Myself, for example.

Always, I've wanted to be a great writer. Not a famous writer—or a popular one. (Fame, cash and popularity rarely matter a hoot to your real lover of words.) But a truly great writer, with the knowledge and time to polish each phrase of its exquisite best . . . to waste hours, if need be, searching for the one perfect expression.

To work like that, giving all I had to it, pouring out my heart in an ecstasy of service to words . . . life, it seemed, could hold no greater joy. And some day—at some far-off time when I've met all my obligations—why then, perhaps, I'd have a chance to write just as I longed to do. Not hurried . . . not worried . . . not tugged or pushed by this or that pressure or demand . . . just selfishly, joyously doing the one thing for which my soul ached—doing it perfectly.

But, of course, I couldn't do it just yet. For Jenny was sick—and weary Ruth needed a vacation—and poor Pete was in trouble again. And there were all those debts. No, I couldn't write as I wished to just yet. I'd have to put it off, take something for the present that paid well and quick. But some day . . .

So, day by day, I put my dream off. And you might as well know - I didn't feel any too sweet about it. It seemed such a shame . . . not to be able to do the one thing you maybe were meant to do. To do it perfectly . . . not dashing it off in a frantic jam, trying to meet a deadline. Not having to stop and answer scores of troubled people you'd never met, giving up your own dreams to comfort their hurt, which chances were, were largely their own fault.

Oh, WHY couldn't I, just for once, have things MY way!

And so the weeks and the years went on, rushing, racing, hurrying, worrying years that some envied but that were poisoned for me by that undercurrent of bitter regret and passionate hunger. So that even when I wrote a line or two that I almost liked . . . or did some act which otherwise have given me joy . . . that inner hurt spoiled everything.

Then, gradually, the truth began to dawn on me. Here I was, going through life, going through rich, vital, proud years of life, filled with glorious opportunity; and yet I was spoiling it all by that foolish dream of Perfect Writing. But did I have any proof that I could do Perfect Writing . . . or that anyone would be the better for it if I could?

What a spoiled baby I was! Crying for a useless shiny moon which I could neither eat nor hock, and letting the warm, sweet, reality of everyday go unregarded! Why didn't I grow up in my imagination as well as my big, husky body?

If I couldn't have what I liked . . . why didn't I like what I could have?

So now I do!

There are gray hairs now, where once there was a dreamer's foolish fuzzy gold. And I know, now, that I'll never write the world's great story or song—

But who cares! I have my feet on the earth at last. . . . The simple, generous earth. . . . And that's worth ten tons of stars you'll never reach!

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Sept. 4, 1923.

Richland county teachers' institute opened sessions at First Methodist church.

It was decided that, following completion of remodeling, a community center program would be developed at Mayflower church, corner Buckingham and Lida streets.

Miss Mary E. Oliver and Frank C. Ettinger were married at the bride's home, 513 Bowman street.

Mrs. Nellie Holmes and son Loren returned after two weeks stay at Winona Lake, Ind.

Miss Isabelle Hagelbarger and Robert Conant were married by Rev. C. B. Hess at Central Methodist church.

Daughter was born at Ponna, Ill., to Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Varney, former Mansfield residents.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schwartz, 111 Lily street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The first foreign flag ever raised in Japan, that of the United States, was run up, Sept. 4, 1856.

NOW Harry Hopkins has written a piece saying that the war is going to last a lot longer "if we lose Russia." He doesn't explain what he means by that crack and you can hardly blame him. You can't lose what you ain't got.

Russia has been fighting to get the invaders out of her territory and doing a bang-up job. She's been getting a lot of the "tools" from us and giving us a lot of advice about a second front.

Maybe Harry has been in the White House so long he thinks the Kremlin is just a whistle-stop. But it seems to be the grand central station as far as Joe Stalin is concerned. And Joe seems to be his own train dispatcher. Incidentally, he's been a pretty good-Nazi-dispatcher, too.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Churchill Praises Russian Allies, Anticipates Meeting With Stalin

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A CONFIDENT and plain-speaking Winston Churchill addressed the world at Quebec on the eve of the fourth anniversary of the war. Afterward he left for Washington and further talks with President Roosevelt.

The British prime minister said:

"We have made a 20-year treaty of goodwill and mutual aid with Soviet Russia. You may be sure that we British are resolved to do our utmost to make that good with all our strength and national steadiness."

"No government ever formed among men has been capable of surviving injuries so grave and terrible as those inflicted by Hitler upon Russia. But under the leadership of Marshal Stalin, and thanks also to the stand made by the British people when they were all alone, and to abundant British and American supplies, . . . Russia has inflicted . . . mortal damage on the German army machine."

"Nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself than to have a three-fold meeting with Marshal Stalin."

On the Second Front.

"I look forward to the day when British and American liberating armies will cross the channel. . . . You certainly would not wish me to tell you when that is likely to happen or whether it be near or far, but whenever the great blow is struck you may be sure that it will be because we are satisfied that there is a good prospect of continuing success and that our soldiers' lives are extended, in accordance with sound military plans and not squandered for political considerations of any kind."

As a result of Churchill's speech an early American-British-Russian war parley was seen in London as a virtual certainty.

At Home

Capital at the Crossroads.

Farm prices have reached their highest peak in 23 years, the agriculture department reports, and a treasury official declared that U. S. farmers are expected to play a big part in the $15,000,000,000 third war loan which opens next Thursday.

"Country banks are literally bursting with idle money," said Lloyd E. Partain, in charge of the bond campaign's agricultural division. He believes 60 per cent of the nation's 6,000,000 farm homes will buy bonds.

Farmers' cash income is more than $19,000,000,000 this year, compared to an estimated $9,100,000,000 in 1940. Last month the index of prices received by U. S. farmers rose five points above July, 30 points above a year ago.

The treasury intends to borrow $21,000,000,000 during the last four months of this year. Government spending in that period will aggregate $35,000,000,000 while revenue will total only $14,000,000,000, it has been estimated.

Death at the Switch.

At 70 miles an hour the Lackawanna Limited thundered past Wayland, N. Y., enroute to Buffalo from New York city.

In the 13 cars of the crack Delaware, Lackawanna and Western flyer were more than 500 passengers, among them many girls signed up with the women's land army to help harvest upstate New York crops.

Ahead of the speeding train, the engineer saw a switch engine on a parallel track. Unaccountably it began to move ahead; its front end encroached on the main line.

Shearing off part of the engine's boiler, though the rest of it remained upright, the heavier locomotive hurtled from the tracks. Six cars piled on top of it.

The toll reached 27 dead, 150 injured in 24 hours. It was New York state's worst railroad disaster in three years.

Close on Kolombangara.

The Japanese pulled out of New Georgia, in the Solomons ending a 64-day battle. Close on their heels, U. S. troops advanced to several small surrounding islands in a drive to seize Vila on encircled Kolombangara I.

Good news for Pacific fighters came from San Francisco during the week. There Lt. General John L. Dewitt said the United States now has airfields as close to Japan as the aircraft carrier Hornet was when it loosed planes for the Tokyo raid.

Shuttle-bombing trips over Japan from the Aleutians to China with heavy four-engine planes would not be as difficult as the Doolittle flight, the general declared. Chief obstacle now is the problem of supply at both ends of the route.

As though to give point to this forecast, the Japanese radio announced that their base at Marcus island, 900 miles northwest of Wake and only 1,200 miles from Tokyo, had been shelled and bombed by American raiders.

Dave Boone Says:

THE more you study the appeal for peace from Pope Pius XII the more you see where it is directed pretty strongly at the Axis partners. His Holiness, after emphasizing how promises and torn-up pledges brought on disaster, says, "Blessed be those who . . . help to prepare the ground where a sense of veracity and of international justice may germinate and ripen."

And, he adds, "Woe to those . . . who build their power upon injustice, who oppress and torment the unarmed and innocent. You will see that the wrath of God will be with them until the end."

* * *

Nobody stands out as a breaker of pledges and treaties like Germany. Who else, except Japan, torments the unarmed and innocent and builds power upon injustice and oppression?

His Holiness also denounces "inordinate egotism and unjustifiable thirst for power." Well, if that's not a straight-from-the-shoulder smack at the Hitlers, Mussolinis and Tojos you'd go a long way to find one that is, in my opinion.

* * *

"Strength need have no fear of generosity." That's the most striking line in the appeal. Can you detect, even under a microscope, anything faintly resembling generosity in the Axis idea of strength? It's my hunch that Hitler will find the Pope's remarks a definite blitz on his type.

Daily Bible Thought

And he killed James the brother of John with the sword. -Acts 12:2.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I'm foregoing my nervous breakdown this year, and investing the money in war bonds instead."

Quotes

Frederick E. Hasler, president Pan-American society: "The battle to win the peace to safeguard the world from future wars still remains to be fought. And in that battle the free press of the world will be called upon to help to shape the course of human destiny.

Edward R. Martin, governor of Pennsylvania: "Dreams and hopes of a better post-war world will not defeat the Axis. We must pour into this war all our energies and resources, both material and spiritual, until our enemies surrender unconditionally."

Abroad

Russia Smashes On.

German defense lines were cracked wide open during the week as the Soviet army achieved impressive new victories.

To defend their infantry on the steppes the Germans had adopted portable armor shields such as crusaders used to carry. These they planted a few hundred yards apart interspersed with portable concrete pillboxes.

Neither device served them well against Soviet cavalry and mechanized formations which expanded breaks in the Nazi lines, rolled the invaders relentlessly back.

Far from weakening, the Soviets' first summer offensive seemed to be still gathering momentum nearly two months after its start.

Germany, Italy Pounded.

Four years ago the Germans overwhelmed Poland, commenced their ruthless bombing of cities and civilians with a planned frightfulness that dismayed the world.

During the week, the RAF observed the anniversary of the war's beginning by giving Berlin one of its mightiest raids. It was the 77th air raid on Hitler's capital since 1939.

More than 1,500 tons of high explosives, tens of thousands of incendiaries, hurtled down on railroad and industrial installations within 45 minutes. Obliterated, according to one flier, were factory targets and one of the main railroad junctions on the Germans' route to Munich and Italy.

As Anglo-British fliers continued to batter targets in Europe, their colleagues in North Africa and Sicily finished crippling Italian railways.

Satellite Pulls Away.

Out of the fog which Nazi propaganda spreads over Europe when things go wrong, came news during the week of major cracks in the political facade of the new order. Matching lowered morale at home, the Nazis found long-dominated "friendly" nations turning openly against them.

Hitler had been kind to the Danes but during the week he faced the fact that in Denmark too he had failed. The peace-loving monarchy which in 1940 submitted without a fight had flared into open revolt. Off came the mask of Nazi benevolence.

Stockholm reported that Premier Erik Scavenius's cabinet was under arrest, 73-year-old King Christian interned at Sorgenfri castle. More than 2,000 persons were killed or wounded fighting Nazi troops.

Viking Blood Boils.

Prosperous, independent Swedes have long regarded, their country as the leader of the Scandinavian states. Geographically a prisoner of Germany it stood by while Norway was conquered, but during the week war between Sweden and Germany seemed a possibility.

The Danish rebellion added fuel to a crisis which grew from the Nazis' sinking of two Swedish fishing craft. Only the last of a series of such incidents, this episode—accompanied, it was said, by the machinegunning of survivors—caused the Swedish government to lodge a strong protest.

Regarding the Danish rebellion, Prime Minister Albin Hansson declared: "Our hearts are beating for Denmark." He called it a "warning for all of us to be always watchful."

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Alas, He's Queer

PIG-A-WEE, the runt, at seven weeks old is no longer a thing of pity—although we cannot say we are proud of him. For one thing, his physique, instead of square and broadbacked like his brothers, is on the 'pot-gut' order. He waddles when he walks, and when he runs he is very apt to roll—especially if going downhill. He needs no churn.

The boys, while I was away, undertook the task of putting the weanlings into a small pen at the end of the barn. They improvised a trap outside the old sow's pen, into which they coaxed the young shoals with ears of green corn. Then, quickly grabbing one apiece by the hind legs, they carried them squealing to the new abode. Meanwhile the mother hog raised Cain inside the barn, and muttered gruff invective.

All the pigs were moved, and the brothers brought Pig-a-wee, to reunite the family for the fattening. He was as large as the smallest of the others, and walking up with a braggadocio air, he proffered a sophisticated snoutful of good advice, and dived into the trough of milk and mash ahead of all the rest.

What happened then was a great surprise to him.

"They ganged up on him," explained our oldest boy. "They sniffed at him and told him he had BO. He claimed it was just the brand of body powder he was using. But 'twasn't any use. They got him down and would have chewed his ears off if we hadn't saved him. So we made him a new pen of his own in the back yard—and now he's safe and happy."

The plain fact is that our human efforts, to be kind have queered the poor hog's life! He will always be an eccentric among pigs—too dumb to know that he is tolerated by the rest of the barnyard only so long as his human guardians are near.

Sargent the dog, for example, whose favorite sport was chasing the sow's young brood back into the stall with their mother, dropped his tail and turned away, half sadly, when Pig-a-wee the dumpy Duroc, walked boldly up and tweaked his nose.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER XIII

When J. A. Broderick walked into Bob Lee's room in the shabby little hotel at McAlester, the youth was propped up in a rocking chair reading "Deadwood Dick's Last Ride."

"From what I hear you mighty near took your last ride since I saw you last," the older man said severely.

Bob grinned. "I stopped a slug in my shoulder—just one. I'll be riding inside of a week."

"On the ranch. Not gallivanting over the country looking for trouble."

"That will suit me fine," Bob replied.

"Willie May is in the lobby," her father said. "She came with me to shop. Like to see her?"

Color beat into Bob's face. He was wearing a shawl and he had not been shaved for a week. He begged for half an hour to fix up, sent for a barber, and waited for her in the parlor.

Broderick came in with his daughter. "I made her promise to cuss you out proper the way she does me," he told Lee."

"I wouldn't," Willie May said. "It is none of my business if Bob chooses to make enemies of the Hickorys.

She realized that this was something less than fair. The original quarrel with Jake Hickory had started on her account. If Bob felt this he gave no sign of it.

"I reckon I'm one of those fellows born to hunt grief," he replied wryly. "Trouble is, I can't fool you, since we went to school together."

His admission disarmed her. The rare warm smile he loved lit her face. "It's fine of you to do so much for your friend," she told him.

"I haven't done a thing for him yet," he protested. "Fact is, I knew the Hickorys had it in for me, and I thought it would be a good idea to hang this hold-up on them and maybe get them all put in the pen where they can't hurt me."

Broderick snorted. "You figured the best way to keep them from hurting you was to start a shooting match with the whole passle," he said ironically.

"I was the only one who could show Marshal Carson where they were camped."

"Of course you weren't out hunting them when you found where they had thrown off for the night," the cattleman commented.

"When he was a boy he never was happy unless he was poking at a hornets' nest with a stick or putting a bent pin on the teacher's seat," the girl added.

Bob said: "Look at it this way. Cle and I got in this jam together. He was trapped. What kind of skunk would I be if I just sat back and let my friend get shot without doing a thing?"

"You've done enough now," Willie May told him. "Father will see that Cle is pardoned. All you have to do now is get well and forget about it."

"I'll do what I can," corrected Broderick. "We've got enough already thanks to you, Bob, to show this Hickory riff-raff aren't to be trusted as witnesses. I'll talk with Cal Judson to try to get him to see the light. If he would change his testimony that might save Cle."

"And we'll take you to the ranch where we can ride close herd on you until the Hickorys are corralled," the girl put in.

"Fine," Bob agreed, "I'll sleep better if Mr. Broderick can save Cle and if the Hickorys are put out of business."

"The police will get them some day," Broderick predicted.

"Some day isn't soon enough unless Cle is pardoned mighty soon. The Choctaw courts are stubborn, I hear. But what more do they want? We've proved the Hickorys are bandits. The masks show they pulled off this hold-up. We found some of the money on Ed."

"I'm going to talk to Hiram Sugg and ask him to help Cle," Willie May promised. "Do not worry about your friend. He is going to be all right."

Bob did not reply. His mouth took on a stubborn set. During the hours when he had been alone with time to think he had come to a definite conclusion. The extra man he had seen at the camp of the bandits—the one whose back had been turned was Hiram Sugg. Even in the semi-darkness he had felt that he would know the fellow if he could see his face. Now he was sure of it, even though he could not swear to it in a court of law.

Later that day Bob saw Broderick alone. He found it difficult to tell his employer his suspicions about Sugg. For one thing, the man was probably engaged to the cattleman's daughter; for another, he had saved Bob's life at Tecumseh. If he was not guilty of complicity in the train robbery, it would be a scurvy thing to misjudge him. But he had to tell what he had seen and what he guessed. Broderick had a right to know what kind of man was courting his daughter.

The cattleman listened to Bob's story and was not convinced. "It's not reasonable," he explained. "Sugg is getting to be a big man in the Territory. He has his finger in a lot of undertakings. He stands high with the railroads and with the leading merchants. To ruin his future by getting mixed up in such a thing would be crazy. You don't want yore prejudices to run away with you, boy."

"He's in this hold-up, Mr. Broderick," Lee insisted doggedly. "Sugg was the man I saw in their camp laying down the law to them. My idea is that he is the big boss of the gang, though he doesn't let himself get mixed up in any actual hold-ups. They pull the chestnuts outa the fire for him."

The older man shook his head. "No, Bob. You say yourself you didn't recognize him at the time. In confidence I'll tell you one thing, son. The more I see of him the less I like Sugg. I wish to heaven Willie May was not so fond of him. I've come to think he is slippery. But he wouldn't get himself in a tight like this. He's too smart."

"Where does he get money to put into so many things? How do you know he isn't hardpressed for cash?"

"He might be," Broderick admitted. "But that doesn't spell anything. I've had my back to the wall a dozen times. But I never robbed a train."

"Could you make some inquiries and find out if he is in a jam?"

"I could, but I don't like to do that. We're supposed to be friendly."

* * *

Bob did not mention Willie May's stake. He knew Broderick would think of that, would be tortured by doubts until he satisfied himself by finding out what he could.

The cattleman continued to argue.

"If you were riding on the top of the world, son, everything coming your way, would you fling yore life into a mess by throwing in with a bunch of yeggs?"

"No, sir. But I've worked out an idea about Sugg. It's kinda hard to explain. The way I figure it is that success has gone to his head. It's been too easy for him. Everything has come his way. He thinks he's a big shot and nothing can beat him. I wouldn't join a bunch of bandits, but he might—if he was the leader. I don't mean I'm smarter than he is, but I wouldn't take the chances he does. He gets a kick from beating the game, the way a fellow does when he is winning at poker."

Broderick looked surprised. Though he was probably wrong in his suspicion of Sugg, the boy was growing up fast.

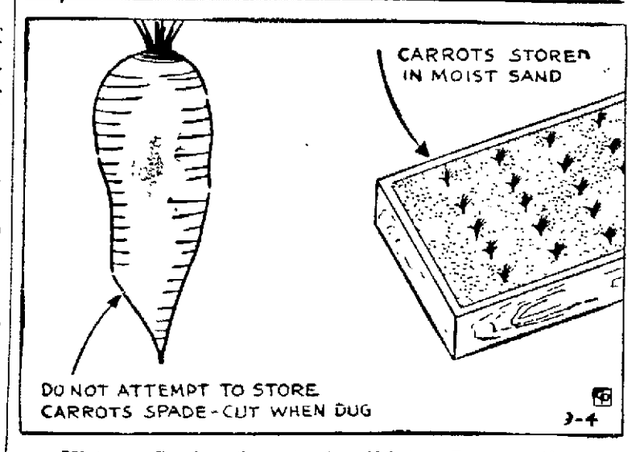
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Victory Garden Carrots for Winter Consumption.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Victory garden carrots should serve two uses—a supply of tender young ones during the summertime and a supply that can go into storage for home use during the winter.

Carrots can be easily stored in the cellar over the winter, and will stay firm and edible if properly put away. Carrots, however, that have been cut with a spade or fork when being dug up, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, should be used at once instead of being stored. The same holds true if the roots have been badly bruised in digging.

Carrots dug for storage purposes should be placed in boxes of moist sand, as illustrated. Before placing the carrots in sand cut off the tops one inch from the crown of the root.

The sand in which carrots are stored should be kept moist by occasional watering. Adequate moisture prevents shriveling of the roots and the moist sand absorbs any odor if decay occurs.

The ideal temperature for storing root crops, such as carrots, is around 38 degrees, never below 32 degrees. Always allow for sufficient ventilation.

HARSH LAXATIVES UNNECESSARY?

Millions Find Simple Fresh Fruit Drink Gives Them All the Laxative Aid They Need

Don't form the habit of depending on harsh, griping laxatives until you've tried this easy, healthful way millions now use to keep regular.

It's fresh lemon juice and water taken first thing in the morning—just as soon as you get up. The juice of one Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water. Taken thus, on an empty stomach, it stimulates normal bowel action, day after day, for most people.

And lemons are actively good for you. They're among the richest sources of Vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply vitamins B, and P, aid digestion and help alkalinize the system.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

WEEKLEY URGES MOTORISTS TO PAMPER CARS

Owners Asked to Make Early Appointments For Service If Possible.

Your car needs pampering for the duration!

Time was when you could neglect the greasing your car needed or an oil change it should have had and no serions harm would have been done. It was your car and you could get another any time, any place and at a reasonable price.

Today things are different. Cars are hard to get. Gas is rationed. Rubber is precious and scarce. And your car is part of America's vital transportation need.

That's why Ross Weekley, proprietor of Weekley's Garage, 41-46 Temple Court, urges you to pamper your car. Have it checked frequently, more often than ever these times, because it has been authoritatively proved that slow driving causes extra sludge in crank cases.

Keep the body clean, free from dirt and corrosive elements. This, Weekley states, will go far toward preserving the finish on your car and keeping it presentable for the duration and the months after the war that you'll have to wait your turn before a new car is available.

It is not always possible, however, to have your car serviced at a moments notice at Weekley's so in order to avoid delay and disappointment, Weekley suggests that car owners make an appointment for a check up or service if at all possible.

Weekley service includes calling for and returning a car if requested or cars left during the day will be carefully serviced and parked in a fire proof garage until called for in the late afternoon.

Elimination of Rush Orders Urged By Mansfield Photo Engraving Co.

Curtailment of Metals and Chemicals Most Drastic In Industry's History.

The Mansfield Photo Engraving company, since its inception 14 years ago, has not only kept pace with new developments within the industry but has bent its effort toward aiding with every worthwhile enterprise in the community and the nation.

"Now, as never before, the organization is geared to the needs of a wartime America," declares Cliff Sherrard, who shares the management of the company with Philip Dickerson.

They serve business and industrial firms within a 75 mile radius of Mansfield and provide the government with the ammunition necessary for providing correct information to the civilian public and to the armed forces by way of halftones, etchings, color plates, electrotypes, photographs, lettering and designing.

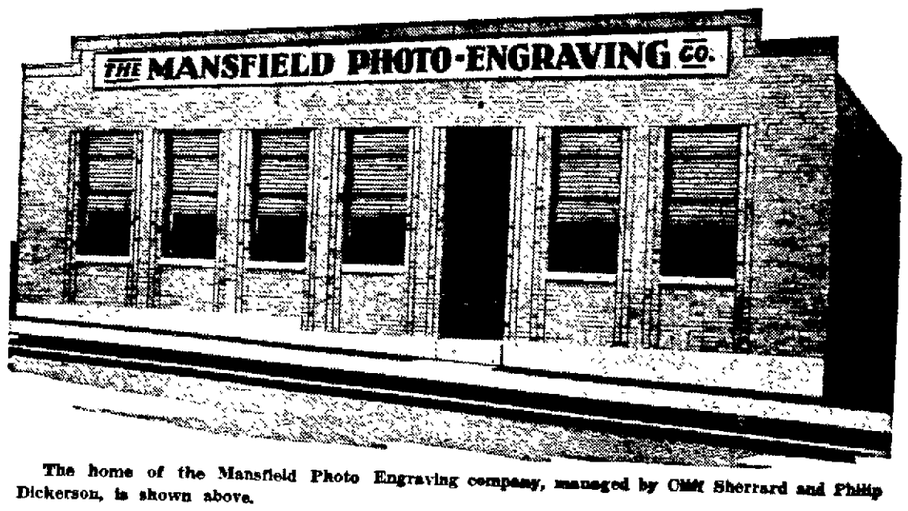
The Mansfield Photo Engraving company has one of the most modern and complete engraving plants in the state capable of supplying all the products of the photo engraving art. The industry, however, is now operating under the most drastic curtailment of metals and chemicals in its history.

It is the urgent problem of the local plant to deliver a maximum of printing surface, without waste, within the restrictions imposed by our government and at the same time to take care of as many engraving requirements as possible.

The management of the Mansfield Photo Engraving company, then, solicits the aid of all customers in the saving of metals, chemicals, and other strategic materials that go into the making of their product. "This can be accomplished to a great degree," Dickerson states, "by the elimination of rush work and by extending the "delivery requirement" on all normal work."

"Each engraving made on a separate plate," he continues, "involves an extravagant use of metal. We need more time for the making of all engravings, either zinc or copper, so as to effect the utmost economy of materials."

"Think twice and more than twice, before you order a rush engraving," Sherrard goes on. "We know that we can count on you to help us do our part in the winning of the war."



The home of the Mansfield Photo Engraving company, managed by Cliff Sherrard and Philip Dickerson, is shown above.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Marion—herself!"

For a startled instant I thought that I had uttered the words aloud. Then as Crump plodded on with his story, I realized thankfully I had not betrayed my sudden conviction that the woman whom he was describing was indeed Lilian's missing daughter.

I realized something else—that the man was no longer gazing directly at me as he talked but had fixed his eyes on the window behind me. Taking advantage of this opportunity I shot an appealing glance at Dicky and framed the name 'Marion?' with my lips. He nodded vigorously, framed an answering 'Of course' and I focused my attention on the resumption of the man's story.

"What have you got that's ready to serve and good?" the older man barked at me.

"I can recommend the roast duckling, sir," I replied.

"Bring three orders then," he snapped. "Bring your best soup first, and a bottle of sherry. You will join us, my dear?" he said to the woman. But she put up her hand as if she were pushing something away.

"No! no! no! I've told you all I know before," she said, and there was something so out of character about her voice that I could not help watching her."

"What do you mean, dear?" I asked seeing that he needed prodding in his attempt to tell the story.

"Why, she acted as if she were awful scared of him the minute although anybody could see that the young one had fallen for her hard."

I fought back a shudder, realizing that our sheltered Marion would be more afraid of the young man than the sterner older one.

An Appealing Look.

"But, then, too," Crump went on palpably fumbling for words she looked as if she were nerving herself up to something, and then, when the men took their eyes off her for a second, she sent me the queerest look, as if she were trying to tell me something."

He paused again, while I fought to keep myself from screaming at him to get on with his story.

"You see all kinds come into a place like ours," he began again; "right ones and wrong ones. But she wasn't the kind to be making passes at a waiter, and I made up my mind she was in trouble of some sort and needed help.

"Now, it isn't a waiter's business to mix in with the customers, and besides the men looked as if it wouldn't be healthy to meddle with their business. But there was something about that woman—I made up my mind I'd keep a sharp watch on her anyway. And once, when the men weren't looking, I nodded my head when she looked at me, so she'd know I understood she wanted me to do something.

"It's a good thing I did, for when I was serving the duck, she dropped her napkin and stopped down quick to pick it up I stooped too, at the same time, and she pointed to a folded piece of paper that she'd dropped with the napkin I grabbed it and hid it in my hand till I could park it, and she took her napkin with a sweet 'thank you' to me and went on eating her dinner as if nothing had happened

"I pretended I'd forgotten something and went to the kitchen. There I unfolded the piece of paper, read what was on it and then put it and another piece of thin paper that was inside it safely away. I went back to the table and waited my chance to nod my head to her, so that she'd know I meant to do what she said."

"Where is—" I began but Dicky checked me to stop and [illegible] "Not that I'm sorry that the man got away finished.

"From all at once there was a change in her you wouldn't believe it. Before she'd been quiet and sad but after I came back to the table she perked up and looked and talked and acted as if she enjoyed the dinner. Not too much she didn't you understand, but enough to fool them into thinking she wasn't so grouchy any more. And when they were ready to leave I heard her say 'I like this place. That was an awfully good dinner.'

Eyes Said Thank You.

"Then we'll come here again soon, the young man said, and then they went away, and if ever a girl said 'I'll look you with her eyes she did when she got a chance to look at me before they left."

His voice trailed off on the last word, and I knew that he had come to the end of his story. With my pulses pounding, I watched him put his hand into his pocket and bring out a folded paper which he handed to me.

"This is it, just as she handed it to me," he said.

"Thank you," I said. Then I unfolded the paper, saw Marion's unmistakable handwriting, and felt as if my breath had stopped.

"It's true, Dicky," I murmured faintly "This is from Marion."

LECRON BLASTS INTERFERENCE

Quits Post, Hits 'Stone Wall Of Incompetence' In State Department.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A week of innuendo, charge and countercharge swirling around the state department wound up today with a new batch of criticism aimed from within the administration itself by an official who quit in sharply-worded protest.

James D. Lecron, former Des Moines, Ia., newspaperman, resigned as director of the food supply division under Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs. He abided by President Roosevelt's orders that anyone who wants to air criticism of the administration publicly should accompany it with his resignation

Lecron charged the state department with "interference, obstruction and unintelligent dictation." He said in a letter to Rockefeller he was "unwilling longer to beat my head against the wall of incompetence and interference."

Lecron, a close associate of Vice President Wallace, was assigned to increasing Latin-American food output to help the over all needs of the United Nations." He continued:

That "interference" from the state department had been going on since his division was created.

Various officials, some in only minor positions, were able to "harass and block our work because of divided authority, lack of administrative organization and want of directive policy in the state department."

HUNT GIRL BRIDE

EAST LIVERPOOL — (UP)— Authorities began a search today for Mrs. Alice Lyons, 17-year-old bride of five months who has been missing since Aug. 20.

Have Fun In Your Own Back Yard

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE (AP Food Editor)

Most picnics this year have to be within walking range of the kitchen. For many of us that means the back yard, terrace or porch.

Low-point meats and other main dishes suitable for quick and easy serving are preferred. Or you can plan a combination affair with the guests pooling their ration stamps for a good steak. Part of the meal can be started in the kitchen and the cooking finished over the barbecue fire.

Chops, franks, kabobs and other small meats, require short cooking time when broiled over a glowing fire.

BARBECUED CORN is fun to cook over an outdoor grill or open fire. Discard the husks and silk from good fresh corn. Wrap each ear with a thin slice of bacon, pegging it in place with picks or metal skewers. Pierce with sharp stick and broil until bacon is crisp and the corn a light brown. Turn the sticks slowly and steadily for best cooking. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper mixed together in a large shaker. No butter is needed to give flavor to corn cooked like this.

FRANKS AND TOMATO CUBES make grand out-door eating. Cut franks into half-inch slices and tomatoes into inch cubes. String up the franks and tomatoes on long forks, metal skewers, or thin sticks. Dip in barbecue sauce and broil about 8 minutes or until brown.

The sauce is good with any barbecued meat. Make it like this: Simmer 10 minutes 4 tablespoons margarine, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup sliced fresh tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion and ¼ cup vinegar. Add a clove of garlic and discard it after 4 minutes of cooking. Press the cooked mixture through a coarse sieve.

HAMBURG CREOLE starts in the kitchen and finishes over the out-door fire. Mix together one pound hamburg, 2-3 cup dried bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt ¼ teaspoon paprika and 1 tablespoon each of finely minced onions and parsley. Shape into inch balls. Roll in flour and brown in 3 tablespoons bacon fat, chopped suet or salt pork. Simmer 15 minutes 2 cups corn, 2 cups cooked noodles, 2½ cups cubed tomatoes (fresh), 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika and ¼ cup each, chopped onions and celery. Add 4 tablespoons margarine or bacon drippings and ¼ cup flour. Blend thoroughly and add the meat balls. Pour into 2 shallow, greased baking dishes. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven Cover and finish cooking 15 minutes over the out-door fire. This amount will serve eight, generously.

HOT SPICED BEET RELISH gives tang to meats cooked out of doors. Simmer 20 minutes 2 cups chopped cooked beets, 2-3 cup sweet pickle relish, ½ cup water, ½ cup vinegar, 1-3 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons pickling spices loosely tied in a white muslin square. Discard the spice bag and boil the relish a minute. Serve it with meats.

CORN VEGETABLE FRITTERS are filling and inexpensive to cook on a griddle set over the out-door stove. To serve 6 or 7, mix together 3 cups flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tea spoons salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-3 teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups grated fresh corn, 2-3 cup sliced, cooked carrots, 2 tablespoons each minced onions, green peppers and parsley, 3 eggs, beaten, 1½ cups milk and 2 tablespoons shortening, melted. Pour from a pitcher onto hot greased griddle. Brown on both sides and serve hot with cheese or tomato sauce.

BACK YARD BARBECUE: Pool your guests' coupons for a steak. Fat salvage containers add patriotic note.

Sauce Can Be Stretched for Meat Dish

By BETSY NEWMAN

In restaurants that specialize in Italian style spaghetti, you can obtain meat balls in the spaghetti, you remember, or you can get spaghetti with meat sauce. This meat sauce helps to make the smallest amount of meat "go 'round" to the largest possible number of people, so it's a good stunt to remember. I'll give you a good recipe.

Today's Menu.

Spaghetti or Noodles with Meat Sauce
Buttered Cabbage
Tossed Green Salad
Apple Pudding
Coffee or Substitute

Meat Sauce.

1 pound ground beef
1 onion, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 cup tomatoes
1 cup water

Brown ground beef in lard or meat drippings, season and add remaining ingredients Simmer for 30 or 40 minutes Serve over boiled noodles or spaghetti.

Apple Pudding.

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup milk
1 egg
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar, add beaten egg. Sift flour, measure and sift again with salt and baking powder, and add alternately with milk. Pour into loaf pan, peel apples, core and cut in eighths. Spread on top of dough and bake.

ARMY CHOICE PEPPERMINT

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—(U.P.)— Fifty per cent of all hard candy purchased for the army is peppermint flavored, the Quartermaster Corps announced. In one month alone, the army bought 9,000,000 pounds of assorted hard candies, one-half peppermint and the other half divided among a full dozen flavors, including chocolate, orange and lemon.

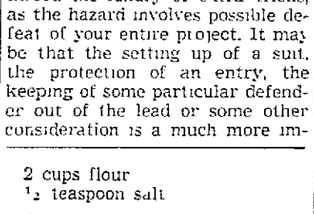
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN YOU AFFORD IT?

TRYING a finesse, for the sole purpose of seeking an extra trick above your contract, is very fine bridge unless it endangers your contract. Sometimes you cannot afford the luxury of extra tricks, as the hazard involves possible defeat of your entire project. It may be that the setting up of a suit, the protection of an entry, the keeping of some particular defender out of the lead or some other consideration is a much more important factor than the few additional points which winning the finesse may bring If so, forget the finesse and go for your contract.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	1 ♥	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

East opened his heart 4, and North made a very cursory study He held up his A for one round letting the J win, and then took the heart K with the A. Seeing that he might get six club tricks if the finesse would work, and the K would then drop on the second round he tried it at once and lost to the K. West took two more hearts, making four tricks for his side, then led his spade J. All at once North realized he had blocked the club suit, as the spade A got knocked out before the club A was gone from the dummy.

North really fumbled two chances to make his contract. First, it would have been safer to take the club A on the first round and lead the Q, in the hope that the defenders would take that trick and thus unblock the suit. Not having done that, West gave him another chance, which he failed to recognize. When the last heart was led by West, North discarded a spade from the dummy. All that he had to do was toss off the club A, clearing the suit in the closed hand.

If, however, West had not taken the 13th heart, but had returned a spade instead, all that the declarer could have taken would have been the tricks he did get anyway, two diamonds and one each in the other suits. But he got set four tricks anyway, through his own blunders, in spite of the extra chance which West gave him to make his contract.

WACS WILL GO TO ITALY SOON

Will Follow Army As Soon As It's Safe.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — WACs will join the army in Italy and Sicily as soon as conditions there are sufficiently stable to warrant the transfer of Allied headquarters, it was disclosed today.

An army spokesman emphasized, however, that war department policy precludes sending women into zones of enemy fire.

Officials said that most WAC work will be performed at field headquarters behind the lines.

THEY GOT HIM

Member of Imperial Jap Family Fatally Wounded.

(By United Press)

Count Hiroside Fushimi, fourth son of Prince Hiroyasu, a member of the Japanese imperial family, died last Sunday from wounds suffered in air combat in the Southwest Pacific, Tokyo radio said today.

The broadcast said Count Fushimi, a naval lieutenant, was "aboard a warplane on strategical duties when he encountered an enemy plane"

CATCH PRISONER

Farmers Trap Italian Who Fled Prison Camp.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (UP) — Authorities today announced the recapture of a 23-year-old Italian war prisoner of war who said he was "just trying to visit relatives in San Francisco."

The prisoner was captured when he stopped a farmer on an isolated road and in broken English asked the way to San Francisco. The farmer took him to a neighbor who spoke Italian and discovered the prisoner's identity.

JAPS SCURRY TO SHORTEN SUPPLY LINES

Shipping Losses Believed Spur To Withdrawal From Many Far-Flung Outposts.

by the Japanese which tend to support the belief that they are pulling back:

1. The withdrawal from Bairoko harbor, on New Georgia island, one of the best anchorages in the Solomons.

2. The withdrawal from Rekata Bay, on Santa Isabel island in the Solomons, which the Japanese had used as a sea plane base.

3. The shifting of the bulk of shipping destined for Rabaul to Kavieng, on New Ireland island, because of Rabaul's increasing vulnerability to air attack

There are some here who believe that when Allied forces on New Guinea finally succeed in capturing Salamaua and nearby Lae, the Japanese will withdraw from Wewak, where their efforts to establish a major air base have been dealt crushing setbacks by our airmen.

Knox's estimates, prepared "by those assumed to know," showed that the Japanese had 6,368,891 tons of cargo shipping at the start of the war and acquired 1,250,000 tons more through seizure and new building.

With more than one-third of the total gone, the Japanese are presumed to have something in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 tons remaining Military experts doubt that this tonnage is sufficient to meet the tremendous burden of supply and communication. They point out that the enemy has to supply its forces in the southwest Pacific, in the Philippines, in Burma, French Indo-China and in China, and all of this by water transportation. Even communication between the main islands of the Japanese homeland must be by water.

Knox summed it up this way:

"The striking loss of cargo ships must be embarrassing to their vital activities."

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, September 5.

Sunday's horoscope is a very propitious one for all manner of social, intellectual, affectional and other enjoyments, which are highly stimulated for good cheer and the fulfillment of cherished objectives. However, in business there may be little profit or material satisfaction, and there may be a definite form of disturbance in relation to employers or superiors. Shun all manner of extravagance

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a very productive and progressive year by assisting its outstanding talents and abilities through harboring its personal resources of speech, energy, finances and other assets. Extravagance or excess may tend to antagonize elders or superiors to the detriment of excellent prospects.

A child born on this day may be endowed with exceptional talents and mental equipment, but it may be prone to work at cross purposes with elders or superiors.

For Monday, September 6.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a definitely exceptional or perplexing state of affairs, which may lead commonplace interests entirely above the workaday or common grooves of experience. While excellent prospects may be shown with efficiency and energy stimulated to cope with whatever may arise, yet there is a swerve toward the imaginative, idealistic or glamorous which might cause distortion of practical issues. Romance or domestic matters lure.

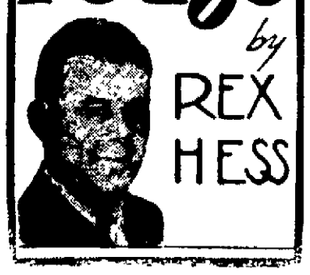
Wells Retains Championship By One Stroke Margin

Sport Podge



by REX HESS

The gallery of oldsters sitting on the benches between 10-tee and 18-green at Westbrook Country club wasn't just exactly courteous or even sympathetic with their dubs-in-arms struggling through the Ohio Seniors golf tournament.

In fact the razzing the galleryites, who had already finished their day's play, put out was little short of terrific, but it was all in fun, and was taken that way.

The old boys can conform to golf etiquet when it seems to be called for.

They were watching one oldster tee off of 18. The drive was topped, messed up, and flubbed generally. The ball trickled off the tee and about 20 yards up the fairway. The gallery guffawed.

Came the second shot, and it wasn't much better, landmg in the road that crosses the fairway halfway up. The gallery swooned with delight. "You ought to give up golf," chortled Tournament Committeeman John Moxon of Cleveland. And then added as an after-thought: "Like I did."

The dub patiently plucked his ball from the road, tossed it back on the fairway, and called for his niblick for a pitch to the green.

* * *

And then happened something that no one in the gallery had ever seen before on a golf course, and I doubt if anyone else ever did.

The dub broke his club on the backswing!

Heaving back with all his might, the dub halted at the top of his backswing. The niblick was broken at the grip, held together only by the wrapping, and was wiggling to and fro like a long stem of rubber.

"That," chuckled one galleryite, "is the only thing that never happened to me on a golf course."

How did the poor guy make out? He took another club, and smacked the ball another good 20 yards, still short of the green. He was on in five, about 12 feet from the cup.

Five strokes to get on a green that should have taken one. The galleryites were betting on three or four putts from that 12-foot he.

Calmly the dub stepped up to his ball, stroked it like a champion, and into the cup it ran. Truth to tell, it did jump up and down in the can, showing that if it hadn't sunk it would have gone across the green.

"There's our kind of a golfer," the galleryites agreed. "No matter how much trouble he gets into, he's still in there pitchin'."

Edges Frank Jones for Ohio Seniors Crown

Both Leaders Slip On Back Nine of Final Round Yesterday

JOE M. WELLS, East Liverpool's veteran star of Buckeye amateur golf tournaments of the last three decades, retained his championship of the Ohio Seniors Golf association yesterday at Westbrook Country club by the slim margin, of one stroke.

Starting the day tied with Frank E. Jones, West Lafayette manufacturer, at 76 strokes for the first 18, Wells turned in a 79 for the second round while Jones took 80, making the final tally; Wells 155, Jones 156.

Each of the tournament leaders had trouble on Westbrook's outside nine. Wells yesterday shot the outside nine first, and they were counting him out when he carded a 41. "I didn't sink a putt over four feet," moaned Joe, seeing his title slipping away as he started the inside nine.

Meanwhile Jones had carded a 38 for the inside, and looked like a sure bet. But there's no sure thing in golf. Jones also stumbled on the back nine with a 42, while Wells came back with a 38 on the front.

"All my trouble was on 14 where I had a seven," Jones lamented. "I took three shots on that hole that I never saw. I'll have to get an anchor to keep my head down."

For steady shooting, the palm went to G. C. Selbach of Columbus who carded 79-79-158 for third place. They don't pay off on third place, but fortunately the tournament rules against two prizes to the same man. So Selbach took the championship in the "kid" class of 50-54 which includes Wells. And since Jones got his runner-up prize, W. B. Foden of Cleveland won the honors in the 55-59 class with a 162.

The tournament's iron man, George M. Gray of Coshocton, duplicated his first day's score of 100 to capture the championship in the age 75 and over class with 200. Gray is 82 years old.

* * *

Championship in Class B for those 70 to 74 went to C. H. Foster of Cleveland with 88-89-177. Foster also repeated as title holder having won last year with 180.

Frank A. Sanford of Lorain took the honors in Class C, age 65 to 69 with a card of 87-87-174.

And the champion in Class D, age 60 to 64 is Dr. N. N. West of Lakewood. West had a 77 Thursday and was in the running for the tournament championship, but came in yesterday with an 82 for 159, and fourth place.

Oh, yes. Former Governor George White of Marietta again won an umbrella for the booby prize on his card of 134-120-254.

Colleges Raid Pro Elevens

Charges Made Against Big Ten Schools.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The National Football league, beset by "raiding" colleges and draft boards takes to the gridiron tomorrow for two exhibition games: Chicago Bears vs. New York at Buffalo, N. Y.; and Green Bay vs. Washington at Baltimore, Md.

* * *

The exhibitions—to be followed by five others—unofficially launch the 1943 pro pigskin campaign, although Washington was beaten by the College All-Stars Aug. 28 and the championship season opens Sept. 12.

Readying for the season, the league (reduced from 10 to eight clubs) received a hearty go-ahead from administration officials at Washington and went into training two weeks ago, hopeful of a prosperous program. The schedule was reduced from 11 to 10 games the player limit was pared from 35 to 28, and prospective travel was cut 47 per cent, or about 1,068,000 passenger miles. The visto was rosy.

Since then, however, every team has been assailed by draft boards, which apparently are out of sympathy with the administration's off-the-record appraisal of pro football as a valuable stimulant to civilian morale.

Additional annoyance came from certain Big Ten universities which put reverse English on the proselyting racket. They recently tried to hire stars away from the league, not as coaches, but as players. For example, one member of the Green Bay Packers was offered $50 a week if he would return to college to get his master's degree and represent that august institution of learning on the gridiron.

Now that wartime revocations have let the bars down, almost anyone can play on a college varsity. This puts the cleat on a different foot than in the days before colleges had working agreements with organized professional sports. In those days ivy-clustered professors screamed distraughtly every time a hall club induced an athlete to leave the campus before graduation.

In addition to these attempted raids on players, we learn that the Big Ten conference has been trying to wean away some of the National league field officials. A pretty pot of piscatorial viands, indeed.

But the pros can take it; they aren't squawking—much. They are preparing a salubrious menu of gridiron fare for the public—a menu that should be appreciated highly, in view of the uncertain fodder now simmering on college gridirons.

The league carries on with eight instead of 10 clubs, following Cleveland's withdrawal for the duration and the merger of the Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers into one outfit—the Phil-Pitt Eagles. The other clubs are Washington, defending champion; Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Green Bay, Detroit, Brooklyn and New York.

LONG SHOTS CLICK IN DAILY DOUBLE

NEW YORK —(INS)— They're still picking up the pieces of broken long-shot records today at Aqueduct race track.

A couple of galloping glue pots, Markobob and Spirit, won yesterday to bring in the largest daily double in metropolitan racing history—$3,888. Fifteen people shared in this windfall.

Markobob paid $484 for a two-dollar ticket, the biggest price in the four year history of mutuels at this track. One hundred people had bets of this 216 to 1 longshot.

Brown Cuts Plays Down

Squad Also Trimmed To 48 For Season.

By GIL KARP

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Ohio State university's football team will open the season with a fewer number of plays than ever before, Coach Paul Brown revealed today.

* * *

"We are making very slow but steady progress, and because of this we will have to cut down on the number of plays usually under our command," Brown said.

* * *

"The reason for this is obvious," Brown added, "with boys who have had no college football training and the average age of the team being just 18, it will take more time in rounding them into shape and teaching them State's system."

At the present time Ohio's squad is down to 48 men, which is considered "working size" for the season.

Stu Komer, prospective right tackle from Detroit, Mich., is not expected to return in time to enter into varsity competition.

At present, Brown is stressing speed in his practice sessions, with two new plays a day scheduled for the remainder of drills up to the season opener with the Iowa Sea Hawks on Sept. 25th.

Brown explained that "when you have team speed everything clicks, but if just one man is slow the whole offensive slows up as a result."

Although Brown readily admits that this year's Buckeye squad will not be any ball of fire, he is particularly worried about the punting situation.

Brown is trying out a number of men for this important part of both the offensive and defensive play, but lack of experience will necessitate starting from the bottom.

Dean Sensenbaugher, Uhrichsville; Ernie Parks, Canton, and Bob Hecker, Olmsted Falls, are the prospective passers for the Buckeyes this season, and "for the most part do rather well," according to Brown.

Hecker's passing should be an asset, because he flips from the portside and southpaw flinging bothers the opposition considerably.

However, Coach Brown indicated he has little hope the current aerial attack may rival the highly successful 1942 firing.

"There were two reasons for the successful passing attack last year," Brown explained. "We had great throwing and great receiving, and we had a strong running attack which made our passing all the more effective."

As far as offensive play is concerned, Brown readily admits that the play is "ragged." "The only reason that we might have looked good in practice sessions," he said, "was that our first and second stringers were working against the fifth team most of the time and we gave them some stuff the defensive team didn't know about."

Defensive play is coming along even slower, because of the inexperience and youth of the players.

11 Horses Start In Futurity Race

CHICAGO—(INS)—Eleven horses will battle it out this afternoon at Washington Park for the $20,000 added Washington Park Futurity, one of the richest stakes in the country for two-year-olds.

If all 11 entries go to the post the race will have a gross value of $56,525 with first place being worth around $40,000.

Topping the list of entries was Alorter, owned by A. C. Ernst, of Cleveland, which is noted for his stretch running and which has captured three stakes in Chicago race meets.

Attention was first drawn to the Cleveland horse when he showed remarkablea power in driving to victory in the Joliet stakes during the Lincoln Fields meeting. After that he won the Primer and Juvenile stakes during the Arlington-Washington Park meet.

Brewers Sneak Back Into First

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee's Brewers took advantage of a double-header feud between the other two top contenders for the American Association lead last night to sneak back into first-place—by a mere half game.

The Brewers won two games from St. Paul 5 to 3 and 10 to 8, while Columbus and Indianapolis were dividing a twin bill. The Red Birds dropped the opener, 9 to 2, and won the nightcap, 2 to 0, to slip out of the lead, with Indianapolis holding third place just one game behind Milwaukee.

Johnny Hutchings coasted to victory in the first Indianapolis-Columbus game when his Tribe teammates splurged for six runs in the fifth inning. In the second, however, Columbus' Jack Creel hurled a tight three-hit shutout while his mates picked up single runs in the second and third innings for the 2 to 0 win.

Louisville, trying hard for a first division berth, slapped down the fourth place Toledo Mud Hens twice, taking the scheduled seven-inning opener 7 to 5 in 10 frames and winning the nightcap, 3 to 1, behind Norman Brown's four-hit pitching.

Minneapolis defeated Kansas City, 5 to 3.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Next week football—Yale vs. Muhlenberg and Illinois vs. Camp Grant to name a few early starters . . . but don't expect any red-hot tips from this corner. All we know is that we'd like a piece of a good pro franchise this year where there's virtually no college competition. . . . The season won't be all gravy for the pros, however. Pete Cawthon says his Brooklyn Dodger players had so many different kinds of coaching that he had to start from the bottom as if they were a bunch of freshmen.

Lewis Burton, New York Journal-American: "In his efforts to revolutionize baseball, William D. Cox, the boy wonder of Philadelphia, may be taking on too much when he includes a feud with the official scorers. . . . That's tackling the Baseball Writers' association, and aside from the U. S. army and navy, Cox couldn't have picked a tougher foe . . . that is, except the Chinese laundryman."

Springfield Loses Title

Minneapolis Takes Legion Tournament.

MILES CITY, Mont. —(AP)— The Minneapolis Richfields entrained for home today with a 3-2 conquest of Springfield, O., and the National American Legion Junior Baseball championship.

The Richfields touched Springfield's southpaw, Harry Amato, last night for a seventh-inning walk and a double for the run that snapped a 2-2 tie. Long Bob Danielson, Minneapolis speedballer, protected the lead.

Danielson, although he surrendered nine hits, two walks, a balk and a wild pitch last night, finished as the tourney's top hurler with two victories and a no-decision relief job. But three scouts for major league clubs, watching the proceedings, appeared to concentrate on Danielson and the other pitchers while they were filling in the outfield.

The scouts who hopefully watched the youngsters were graying Pat Monahan, for the St Louis Cardinals; Claude (Bubbert) Jonnard, one of John McGraw's flingers two decades ago and now a New York Giant scout, and Hollis Thruston, former White Sox pitcher who beats the bushes for Pittsburgh Pirate talent.

All three agreed that they saw no outstanding pitchers, but three of the curvers—Danielson, Amato and Emory Hresko of Flint, Mich—looked good while performing in the outfield. All hit savagely.

Hunt Surprises Frankie Parker

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Husky Joe Hunt, the blond naval lieutenant whose unsatisfied athletic ambition was to play varsity football for Navy, attempts to move closer to the number one spot in American tennis in the semi-finals of the national amateur championships at Forest Hills today.

The rugged blond sailor, fresh from a smashing upset triumph over top-seeded Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, tackles Billy Talbert, the Indianapolis insurance agent, in the lone men's semi-final match. The other penultimate contest, between Pancho Segura of Ecuador and rangy Jack Kramer, Los Angeles coast guardsman, will be held over until Sunday.

Many people have wondered if the toad is poisonous. They are! In most toads the skin is covered with warts, particularly on the side of the neck, and these exude a milky, poisonous fluid when the toad is molested. The parotid glands, behind the eyes, also secrete this poison. The poison is an acrid irritant, its purpose to protect the toad against enemies, and it affects the mucous membrane in an animal's throat and produces a bitter feeling in the throat.

Yanks, Cardinals Sew Up Loop Flags

Virtually Clinch Championship With Victories Yesterday.

By TED MEIER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE NEW YORK YANKEES and the St. Louis Cardinals virtually clinched the championships in the American and National leagues yesterday as Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh became the first major league pitcher to win 20 games.

In polishing off Washington and Cincinnati, their closest contenders, the Yanks and Cards stretched their leads to 11 and 13½ games, respectively. Since the New Yorkers play 20 of their remaining 29 games at home and the Cards have last bats in 24 of their remaining 28 contests it is as safe as anything in baseball to assume that they will meet again in the world series.

The Cards came from behind with a three-run ninth inning rally to beat the Reds, 5 to 4. The Yankees had comparatively easy sailing against Washington, blanking the Nats 4 to 0 behind Hank Borowy's five-hit pitching.

* * *

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks was hit by a thrown ball while seated in he dugout before the game. The injury was not serious, but Dr. Emmett Walsh said it would give McCarthy a "black eye."

Aided by five Chicago errors the veteran Sewell experienced little dificulty in gaining his long-sought 20th triumph. He scattered eight hits in beating the Cubs, 5 to 1.

Whit Wyatt's pitching and Luis Olmo's hitting extended Brooklyn's winning streak to seven with a 4 to 1 triumph over the Giants.

Pinky Higgins connected for a three-run ninth inning homer to give Detroit an 8 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns while the Philadelphia Athletics beat the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4.

The Boston Braves, Phillies, White Sox and Indians were idle

HOPES BLASTED

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Any hopes the Reds had of ever catching the St. Louis club were blasted in the last half of the ninth inning last night when the Cards put across three runs to defeat them 5 to 4.

The Reds did all their scoring before Billy Southworth's boys got going. They scored a run in the second, a pair in the fourth and the last one in the seventh—all on a double by Bert Haas and two of them by Ray Mueller.

The Cards got two runs in their half of the seventh, and going into the last half of the ninth, Whitey Kurowski was safe on a fumble by Eddie Miller. Ray Sanders doubled to send Johnny Hopp, running for Kurowski, to third. He scored on Martin Marion's single. Sanders tied the score on Pinch-hitter Deh Garms' safe bunt.

With two out, Harry Walker singled Marion across the plate to end the game.

IRREGULARITY RULES MARKET PRICE CHANGE

Wages and Salaries Reported 31 Per Cent Higher Than Last Year's Figures.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Narrowly irregular price changes ruled early dealings in today's stock market.

Up fractions at a slow opening were American Telephone and International Harvester. Small declines were posted for General Electric, Woolworth and Radio Corp.

Market inflation thinkers found an argument in the summary of the commerce department estimating wages and salaries received by Americans in the first seven months of 1943 amounted to $56,761,000,000, a 31 per cent increase over the like period a year ago and 87 per cent more than in the comparable time of 1929.

supply mission, the British chiefs of staff and others connected with the British embassy.

As the Allies drove into Italy, the question of what to do with the fallen Italian leader when and if the Anglo-American forces get their hands on him—became increasingly in need of a well-planned answer.

Plans for trials of Axis leaders responsible for plunging the world into war were believed to have come up in the current discussions between Mr. Roosevelt and the prime minister.

The two leaders were together until a late hour last night and were expected to resume their more or less informal talks this morning. They watched a steady flow of dispatches from the new Italian front to the White House bearing news that will be publicly disclosed later.

The importance of Churchill's current presence in Washington, despite the fact that the conferences here have been described officially as the "concluding" phase of the Quebec meetings, was emphasized by the way the president has virtually eliminated his daily routine of engagements.

there will be a number of vacancies on the ballots since some of the offices attracted no candidates.

Opponents for municipal judge in Mansfield will be Judge H. H. Schettler, Republican, seeking his first full term, and Atty. Marion D. Ward, former Democratic city solicitor. Judge Schettler was appointed last winter to succeed Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who went to the common pleas bench.

Only two school board posts will be voted on in Mansfield this fall, the other three members holding over. Board members are elected on a non-partisan ballot for four-year terms. Hold over members are H. W. Arlin, A. H. Fankhauser and W. O. Leedy.

Village and township petitions filed at deadline included 20 petitions for 12 offices in Plymouth giving promise of the keenest contest in the county.

J. B. Derr and Henry A. Verdervort are opposing candidates for mayor of Plymouth, J. H. Rhine uncontested for clerk and Carrie L. Gebert and Leon Z. Davis opponents for treasurer. Most contested positions are the six members of council for which twelve persons have filed petitions. They are L. R. Fetters, O. L. Kinsel, J. A. Lasch, M. T. Simmons, H. V. Tuckman, H. H. Fackler, Willard W. Wirth, Raymond L. Steele, Gordon Brown, Jonathan A. Weller, Harold B. Shaver and Park F. Mosier.

Petitions for the board of trustees of public affairs in Plymouth have been filed by H. O. Downend, B. R. Scott, N. B. Shepherd.

Other petitions were filed for village offices by Thomas R. Zeigley for mayor of Bellville, Frank Livingston, F. J. Bridgeland, George G. Bowers, S. Howard Yarger, Howard Stone, and Charles Palm for council of Bellville, Leo J. Robinson for Bellville clerk, F. M. Hess for Bellville treasurer, G. E. Jones, Glenn P. Freeman and E. E. Long for board of trustees of public affairs.

Petitions filed for South Bouleards offices include R. K. Clark for mayor, A. F. Ettelgeorge for clerk, Robert C. Hain for treasurer, Claim Porter, I. S. Perry, Hoyt C. Oberlin, R. S. Bemiller, W. S. Valmore and A. C. Hunter for council. Lexington office seekers include T. R. Heyser for treasurer, G. R. Creps, Earl Pollock, William Castor, Charles Sowers and Ted Welch for council, W. F. Lawrence and Earl Wentz for trustees of public affairs.

SCAR BERLIN IN HEAVY NEW BOMB ATTACK

RAF Fliers Bring Total Weight Of Explosives, Incendiaries To Eight Million Pounds.

ternatives of sacrificing the garrison or giving up the island.

Here are other recent moves the route to the target but that the sky was clear over Berlin itself.

"Objectives in the Rhineland, airfields and other targets in northern France also were attacked and a large minelaying program was completed," the announcement said. "Twenty-two bombers are missing."

First word of the latest raid on the bomb-battered Nazi capital came from the German DNB news agency, but it was almost immediately confirmed by official sources in London.

DNB, in typical Nazi fashion, once again claimed that a "terror attack" had been carried out against residential quarters, hospitals, churches and other "cultural monuments."

Berlin was hit by two of the RAF's mightiest attacks on Aug. 23 and Aug. 31. Fifty-eight bombers were lost in the Aug. 23 raid and 47 in the Aug. 31 attack, in which one fighter plane was also lost.

Authoritative air circles in London disclosed today that the largest formations of American bombers ever sent out from bases in Britain dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on France yesterday. One official estimate said possibly as many as 1,000 planes had taken part in the pulverising bombardments.

Powerful formations of huge American Flying Fortresses, escorted by swarms of American, British, Canadian and Allied fighters, poured a hail of bombs on two important aircraft factories and repair plants in the Paris area and five Nazi-operated airfields.

Tons of high explosives were dropped on the former Caudron-Renault factory at Paris, now a repair plant for Messerschmitt-109 fighters, and the former Potez plant at Meulan-Les-Mureaux on the Seine, some 25 miles northwest of Paris, also used as a repair plant.

Marauder medium bombers blasted the airfields at Lille-Nord, Beauvais-Lille and Beaumont Le Roger, while other American bombers smashed the Romilly-Sur-Seine and St. Andrew airfields.

Twenty-nine enemy warplanes were shot out of the sky during the daylight operations, at a cost of eight heavy bombers and two fighters.

At 11 o'clock last night the German-controlled Vichy radio declared that the sky over Paris was still "blacked out" by smoke.

Buildings In Heart Of Berlin Bombed

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Government buildings in the heart of Berlin were hit in last night's heavy RAF bombing, dispatches from neutral correspondents in the Nazi capital said today.

The dispatches said the Germans described the raid as "obviously one of the largest ever undertaken against Berlin."

A "large number" of multi-engined bombers were claimed to have been shot down by anti-aircraft fire and in terrific aerial combats high over the German capital and throughout northern Germany.

THEATERS

Dramatic Story.

"Watch on the Rhine," film version of Lillian Hellman's famous prize-winning play is now showing at the Ohio. The cast is headed by Bette Davis and Paul Lukas. Other featured players include Geraldine Fitzgerald, Lucille Watson, Beulah Bondi and George Coulouris. This is a dramatic story of human beings and their courageous fight for freedom. Miss Davis is cast as Sara Muller, American wife of Kur Muller, a German anti-Fascist.

Historical Background.

Wallace Beery has the leading role in the picture "Salute to the Marines," current at the Madison. The story concerns one of the epic chapters in American history, the heroic defense of the Philippines against Japanese invasion hordes. The picture is entirely in technicolor. Fay Bainter plays Beery's peaceloving wife, Jennie. Co-attraction is "The Devil With Hitler," a fast moving comedy satire on the Axis partners and their attempts to liquidate each other.

Merchant Seamen.

Playing at the Ritz is "Action in the North Atlantic," thrilling drama about the men of the United States Merchant Marine. Starring Humphrey Bogart, the picture tells of the heroic exploits of the merchant seamen who ship out in convoys to deliver the needed supplies and ammunitions to the fighting fronts. Others in the cast are Raymond Massey, Alan Hale and Julie Bishop. Co-attraction is "Cowboy In Manhattan," with Frances Langford, Leon Errol, Robert Paige and Jennifer Holt.

Iberia

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Zody of Perrysville spent Monday with their daughters, Mrs. Kathryn Trumpower.

Mrs. Edwin Riggs and son Bobby and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Riggs were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Riggs at Newcomerstown.

Homecoming day will be observed at the Methodist church Sunday. Rev. J. J. Adams of Plymouth, a former pastor, will deliver the address. Rev. Donald Lyons of Kirkpatrick will deliver the afternoon address, and Rev. Dale Riggs of Marengo will deliver the evening address.

Mrs. Mary Seiter is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Lester Tupps, east of Galion.

COME ON, ZERO – I GOTTA GO AN' HAVE SOME BREAKFAST – I'M TERRIBLE HUNGRY –

GEE – BREAKFAST IN A CIRCUS MEANS AN AWFUL LOT OF DIFFERENT KINDA THINGS – THE MONKEYS WANT BANANAS –

ALL THE BIRDS WANT IS A SPOONFUL OF BIRD SEED – AN' THE ELEPHANTS WANT A WAGON-FUL OF HAY –

YOU KNOW, EVERY TIME I EAT HOT PANCAKES WITH MAPLE SYRUP, IT MAKES ME FEEL GLAD I'M NOT A BIRD OR AN ELEPHANT – ?? ?

DARRELL McCLURE

GEE, MISS ALICE – ALL CIRCUS FOLKS MUST BE TERRIBLE RICH –

WHY, HONEY, WHAT MAKES YOU THINK WE ARE RICH?

WELL – I'M ONLY WITH THE CIRCUS A LITTLE WHILE, AN' I GOT MORE THAN TWENTY DOLLARS SAVED UP ALREADY –

PRETTY SOON I'LL HAVE SO MUCH MONEY I WON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH IT ALL –

DON'T WORRY ABOUT GETTING RICH WITH A CIRCUS –

DARRELL McCLURE

THE CIRCUS SEASON ONLY LASTS EIGHT MONTHS – SO WE ARE ALL BUSY, TRYING TO SAVE ENOUGH TO KEEP US ALIVE UNTIL THE NEXT SEASON ARRIVES –

8-31

YOU KNOW, ZERO, ITS NICE TO BE ALL DRESSED UP SWELL LIKE A QUEEN AN' RIDE ON A BEAUTIFUL PONY IN THE PARADE

AN' IT'S NICE TO BE BRAVE LIKE A LION-TAMER IS – OR TERRIBLE STRONG AN' BE ABLE TO BEND IRON BARS LIKE THE STRONG MAN DOES –

BUT I'D RATHER BE A CLOWN – 'CAUSE THE CLOWNS MAKE EVERYONE LAFF AN' FEEL HAPPY – AN' I LIKE TO HEAR FOLKS LAFFIN' –

DARRELL McCLURE

HONEST – EVERY TIME I HEAR A BIG CROWD OF FOLKS ALL LAFFIN' AT THE SAME TIME – IT SOUNDS LIKE A HAPPY CYCLONE AN' MAKES ME FEEL GLAD ALL OVER –

GRAB THE KIDS, PETE! – STICK THEM INTO AN EMPTY CAGE WHERE THEY'LL BE SAFE –

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

MAYBE IT'S SOME KIND OF A GAME –

DON'T BE FRIGHTENED, KIDS – THE BIG LEOPARD HAS ESCAPED – BUT YOU DON'T HAVE TO WORRY NOW –

9-2

DON'T B-B-BE SCARED – OUR CAGE IS LOCKED NICE AN' TIGHT – AN' I GUESS WILD ANIMALS JUST BREAK OUTA CAGES – NOT INTO 'EM –

DARRELL McCLURE

HONEST, JENNY, I THINK YOU AN' JOE ARE GRAND TO HELP ME WASH ALL THE DISHES – THERE'S TWO HUNDRED AN' EIGHT DISHES FROM BREAKFAST ALONE

MY GOODNESS! THAT'S AN AWFUL LOT OF DISHES –

THAT'S ONLY BREAKFAST – THERE'S LUNCH AN' SUPPER –

GOLLY!

9-3

I TRIED TO ADD UP HOW MANY DISHES I HAVE TO WASH IN A YEAR – BUT I WAS TOO DUMB TO FIGGER IT RIGHT –

MUST BE MILLIONS AN' MILLIONS –

BUT IT DON'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE, 'CAUSE THERE'S MILLIONS OF FOLKS TO WASH 'EM – SO I GUESS AS LONG AS FOLKS LIKE TO EAT – SOMEBODY'S JUST GOTTA WASH DISHES –

DARRELL McCLURE

CONGRATULATIONS, ANNIE – MR. TRAINAR TELLS ME YOU'VE TAUGHT YOUR DOG SOME WONDERFUL TRICKS – YOU'RE A SMART YOUNGSTER –

I'M NOT SMART – BUT ZERO IS – HONEST, ZERO IS A TERRIBLE SMART LITTLE POOCH AN' HE LIKES ME –

HE DOES WHAT I WANT HIM TO RIGHT AWAY, AN' HE'S SO GLAD TO DO SOMETHING FOR ME, YOU KIN EASY TELL IT MAKES HIM FEEL HAPPY –

WASHINGTON The Japanese today appeared to be in the process of carrying out gradual withdrawals from forward defense positions in the Pacific in order to shorten their lines of communication and supplies

American offensive aggressiveness combined with heavy Japanese shipping losses are presumed to be responsible

The deep penetration of a U. S. carrier task force into Japanese-dominated waters to strike at Marcus Island, only 1,100 miles from Tokyo, may accelerate the withdrawal movement

Maintenance of the distant bases has necessitated wide dispersion of the enemy's air and sea strength.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox yesterday estimated Japanese shipping losses since the outbreak of war in the Pacific at more than 2,500,000 tons, or better than one-third of enemy pre-war cargo tonnage and tonnage acquired through seizure and new construction.

Knox believes that not only are the Japanese finding it difficult to maintain the necessary supply and communication lines to their farflung bases but are unable to profit fully by the resources of their stolen territories.

The evacuation of Kiska without a fight is now believed to have been a part of the new Japanese policy to tighten their defenses. Knox suggested that the enemy found it difficult to maintain communications to that Aleutians base and were faced with the al-

LONDON —(INS)— A heavy force of Allied bombers, including medium Mitchells and speedy Venturas, swept out over the southeastern coast of England today, covered by a swarm of fighter planes. A short time later reverberating explosions were heard in the Calais area on the "invasion coast" of France.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — The weight of bombs hurled upon Berlin in the last three raids against Adolf Hitler's battered capital was raised to 8,000,000 pounds today with disclosure the Royal Air Force dropped 1,000 tons of explosives and incendiaries in a 20-minute attack last night.

Like the two previous raids, the onslaught was a high-concentrated smash against the city's vital military installations. It was the 78th raid that Berlin has suffered, and was carried out by huge four-motored Lancasters.

British officials estimated that in the last three attacks at least 4,000 tons of bombs have been dropped in a total of 115 minutes of concentrated bombing.

The Royal Air Force returned to the attack against the Nazi capital only three nights after it had struck its most pulverizing blows of the war against that devastated city.

The air ministry announcement said thick clouds prevailed along

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Italian civilians at Reggio Calabria waved white flags and cheered occupying British Eighth army troops. In other parts of the coastal area the civilians received the invaders with a friendly air.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—British and Canadian invasion troops seized the three key ports of Reggio Calabria, San Giovanni and Gallico in the first day of the battle for Italy, securing a bridgehead 10 to 15 miles long and today were reported pushing inland against light opposition.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army landed all along the Calabrian beach across from Sicily, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters revealed, but aimed the heaviest thrusts at San Giovanni and Reggio Calabria.

Taking over those ports and the usable Reggio Calabria air field with a runway almost a mile long, the invasion forces swung around in a big converging maneuver for a junction at Gallico, midway between the big towns.

(Military sources in London said the whole Italian shoreline on the Straits of Messina probably was in Allied hands and the Eighth army likely was striding swiftly along the coast roads on either side of the Italian toe.)

(The Italian high command reported the loss of Melito, 10 miles southeast of Reggio Calabria, and a Berlin broadcast reported a new landing between Melito and Cape Spartivento, 15 miles to the east.)

Axis efforts to impede the invasion advance following the capture of the ports were limited largely to demolitions. The land, sea and air bombardment knocked out enemy gun posts ashore, and the landing forces easily overran the crumpled positions.

"Throughout the day, good progress was made," said a communique issued here, the first official account of the invasion since the landing early yesterday.

A naval communique disclosed that a force of battleships supported the invasion, softening the Axis defenses in the Calabrian coastal area with their 15-inch guns.

The 31,000-ton British battleships Warspite and Valiant pounded the Axis positions in the Cape Del Armi area at the southwestern tip Thursday morning. The Nelson and Rodney previously had battered the Messina straits' shore line.

The invasion force landed against only weak opposition from the shore defenses, mostly Italian units of coastal divisions.

A "large number" of prisoners were rounded up in the first day

Petitions were filed by 177 candidates or approximately 170 board of education, municipal, and township offices to be filled in November Despite the larger number of candidates than offices,

Mayor to Push Plan to Hire 3 to Acquire Airport Land

Back in his office today from a weeks vacation, Mayor W. J. Locke said he was ready to push his proposal that council appropriate $1,000 to employ three experienced real estate men to appraise the 1,000 acres of land the city will need for its airport project.

The mayor said he had three men in mind for the appraisal work, but he refused to reveal their names until he sees what council does with his plan at its meeting Tuesday night. He said the three real estate men had tentatively agreed to do the work for $1,000, giving the city figures to work with when it begins dealing with owners of parcels of property included in the proposed airport site.

Meanwhile, James Bailey's offer to serve the city as a negotiator for the land remained unanswered Mayor Locke said he had learned indirectly that Bailey had offered his services as a land agent for the city, but he had not conferred with Bailey.

"Anyway, it's still a little early to begin talking about negotiating for the property until we get some idea about how much the land is actually worth," the mayor said. "If the expenditure of $1,000 will help the city save several thousand dollars in dealing for the land, it will be worth while."

Council previously set up $500 to pay for preliminary work in setting up the airport project and authorized Mayor Locke, Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff, and City Engineer W. C. Statler to handle the negotiations.

Mansfielders today were becoming concerned about the delay in getting the airport program under way, many persons expressing fear that the city will delay acquiring the necessary land so long that the federal government might withdraw its offer of $600,000 to start the big project.

LIQUOR POST IN SHELBY VACANT

Poling, Whiteside Refusals to Take Job Results In Request For New Endorsements.

The Shelby state liquor store was scheduled to get another manager today, the second within a week, after Frank Poling, former manager of the store on South Park street in Mansfield, and Robert C. Whiteside, Shelby, refused to take the job because it doesn't pay enough.

Ralph Hardy, county Republican executive committee chairman, said his committee had been asked by the state liquor department to endorse M. S. Freeman, Shelby, for manager of the store there. Freeman has been chairman of the Shelby ration board and relief agency.

Transferred to the Shelby post Sept 1, Poling refused to take the job, and Whiteside was named acting manager. He refused to take the post permanently, it was learned, because he wanted $198 a month, the salary at the Mansfield store. The Shelby managership pays only $166 a month, it was said.

Hardy said the G. O. P. committee also had been asked to place its approval on the appointment of Charles E. Kingsboro, retired druggist, as assistant manager and clerk of the Shelby store.

William Thull is the new manager of the South Park street store moving to that job from the state store on North Main street J D Johnson has been named manager of the North Main store, moving up from clerk.

Churchill, FDR Believed Talking About Mussolini

WASHINGTON (UP) President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill resumed their talks on war and postwar problems today, with Churchill taking some time out for consultation with British officials here.

One phase of the discussions between Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill was believed to involve Benito Mussolini. The two Allied leaders were understood to be preparing a hard-handed day of reckoning for the deposed Italian premier, who may be the first big fume Axis "war criminal" to fall into the hands of the Allies.

Churchill conferred with Australian Minister Sir Owen Dixon and planned to lunch with the overseas writers and other members of the press corps.

Canadians Take Objectives Far Ahead of Schedule

By SHOLTO WATT

Representing the Combined Canadian Press.

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

AT MESSINA STRAIT, Sept. 3.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Reports coming from the Italian mainland show that objectives on the Canadian sector of the new Allied bridgehead are being taken far ahead of schedule and that the British are "streaking ahead like a scalded cat."

At 10 a. m I was informed by headquarters that the first Canadian formation had made such progress that it was taking objectives assigned to second formation The first line of hill forts had been taken.

As I drove down from headquarters I saw landing craft returning from Italy and many others putting out, while at one point I counted more than 100 craft afloat in the narrow Messina strait.

This vast array of shipping was only attacked once—by an effective salvo—as long as I was watching. Fires were still burning on the mainland which were started by the night's tremendous barrage, but there were few visible signs of fighting on shore.

Indeed headquarters received a report that there were no Germans on the shore while the Italians were surrendering in droves, just as in Sicily.

I saw prisoners being brought ashore to crowded beaches and nine heavy guns that had been captured.

Besides the prisoners taken on the mainland there has also been a steady trickle for several days of Italians coming over on their own in rowboats at night, including some navy personnel.

Local residents give the impression of being pleased at the invasion. They still are smiling, waving greetings and sometimes throwing gifts of fruit despite the fact that most of them took refuge in the early hours this morning when General Montgomery showed them what he meant by a "Montgomery barrage" fired over their heads.

Humphryes Receives $230,000 Contract Extender.

According to an announcement by the Defense Plant Corporation, in Washington, the Humphryes Manufacturing company today received authorization of a $230,000 contract increase.

Although plant officials could not be reached for comment it is believed the contract increase will be used for additional equipment for an expansion of working facilities at the Mansfield plant.

Company officials have for some time been working on a plan to continue their manufacture of magnesium articles after the war. They are now making magnesium airplane parts having converted to that from their peacetime manufacture of bathroom and kitchen fixtures.

ITALY ECONOMIC RULER PICKED

Hull Names Man To Follow Eisenhower To Mainland.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Indicating the American government's complete confidence that the Allied armies will be victorious in the campaign to occupy the Italian mainland, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today announced the appointment of a director of economic operations for Italy.

The man who has been selected as a virtual economic governor of Italy following its occupation by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's Allied armies is Calvin B. Baldwin, a Virginia business man who has been administrator of the Farm Security Administration since October, 1940.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Since returning from abroad I have been hearing about how southern Democratic senators were going to cause trouble in setting up the peace after the war.

These southern Democrats were supposed to have been laying down the law to Roosevelt and Hull. They were going to stand for none of this global boondoggling and fanciful superstates after the war and they were so afraid of communism that no one dared talk about remaining in the same world with Russia lest Rep. Martin Dies hound him out of public life on some trick Red scare.

Clapper

Nobody ever expected a few indifferent demagogues like Reynolds of North Carolina and O'Daniel of Texas to try to understand the problems. But there were disturbing reports that Senator Pepper was running to cover. One magazine came out with what looked like a feed-box piece about how Roosevelt wasn't going to propose anything that would frighten the most nervous isolationist. Cordell Hull has been sitting on the lid, fearful that the least whisper of guidance to the American public in these times might be seized on by the senators. He and Roosevelt have feared a campaign like the senate waged successfully against Wilson. The policy of the administration has been to keep everything in a whisper lest some of the senators overhear and ruin everything.

I wonder if such nervous caution is justified?

A typical southern Democratic senator is Long Tom Connally of Texas. He clings to the black bow tie which was regulation in the political generation of Pitchfork Ben Tillman. He talks and thinks like a stage southern politician. What Long Tom thinks, most of the other southern Democrats must be thinking because he is so much one of them. The only thing about him that is not typically southern Democrat is that he is chairman of the senate foreign relations committee which gives him no small voice in what is to be done after the war.

Well, unless Long Tom Connally has had a brain storm and made a speech that says something he doesn't mean to say, there is much more hope of a good decision out of the senate than some people had supposed and little justification for the fears around the state department and the White House.

Senator Connally set it all down for a radio talk to his Texas constituents a few days ago. He went out far for an international agency of the United Nations backed by force to settle territorial disputes, and to prevent aggression.

Power to enforce decisions is vital to any such organization, Senator Connally said. He faced the point that membership in such an organization would impair our sovereignty.

The judgment of this states' rights southern Democrat on that point is worth the attention of all of us.

Connally says: "Every treaty to which we are a party somewhat restricts our freedom of action. Sovereignty, however, is the power to do that which we may wish. If peace is worth fighting for—if it is worth the pouring out of stupendous treasure in time of war, it ought to be worth, in time of peace, the exercise of our sovereign power to prevent international outlaws and bandits from plunging the world into a sea of blood. . . . An international body to enforce world peace would, in large measure, eradicate these centers of infection." Connally said Russia must be a party. And China. Also Britain and other members of the United Nations must have a place at the council table.

That's what southern Democrat Connally believes. That makes it safe enough for anybody. Cordell Hull has the same ideas. Why can't he and Roosevelt give us the leadership to make that a truly popular conviction in this country?

They tiptoe about as if they were carrying dynamite. I believe—and Connally's speech strengthens my judgment about it—that the country is begging for the word.

Yet all we get are hysterics from Roosevelt and Hull about what some gossip columnist says. These times are too big for that.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—This piece deals with an incident 26 years old and is written to correct the record and for the comfort of any news reporter who may find his word outweighed by the prestige of a high-ranking officer or official on a straight issue of truthfulness. It is no part of the current dispute between President Roosevelt and Mr. Hull, the secretary of state, on one hand, and the columnist Drew Pearson, on the other.

Pegler

With this preamble let me get to my story.

On June 21, 1917, the United Press carried, and its clients in the United States published, a story from the American base at Queenstown, Ireland, reporting that an American destroyer had fought a U-boat and that "according to the belief expressed by the crew" had rammed and sunk the enemy. It said further that if the submarine was not rammed it probably was finished off by another anti-submarine device, namely, the ashcan or depth-charge which then was a new and secret weapon.

The story was released without restriction by a lieutenant commander on the staff of Vice Adm. William S. Sims in the presence of the post censor, a lieutenant commander of the British Royal Navy. The censor, in turn, passed, stamped and initialed the story, in duplicate and it cleared through the regular telegraph system in the local postoffice.

Two days later the Associated Press published a dispatch from its own Queenstown correspondent reporting that Admiral Sims, on being questioned about the U. P.'s story had denounced it as "absolutely false."

Admiral Sims then placed the young U. P. correspondent under open arrest in custody of Consul Hathaway until transportation could be arranged back to London and he was sent out, accused of faking, and publicly humiliated.

The destroyer in question was the U. S. S. O'Brien but for reasons of secrecy the name was not mentioned.

There the case has stood ever since.

Recently, however, I got access to official records of the navy and obtained information which I herewith present with some personal satisfaction because I was the reporter.

On June 20, three days before Sims said "the story is absolutely false," he officially reported to the navy department: "It is reasonably certain now that the O'Brien destroyed the submarine mentioned." He then gave details of the encounter, closing with the remark that unfortunately this was a case in which the exact result could not be determined.

As further evidence that Admiral Sims uttered a deliberate falsehood in his statement to the A. P., I cite from confidential report of the commanding officer of the O'Brien, C. A. Blakely, dated June 19 and addressed to the commander in chief, coast of Ireland, entitled, "report of contact with enemy submarine."

"At 4:21 in the afternoon of June 16, 1917, in the approximate position 12 miles south of Ballycotten Light, convoying the S. S. Elysia, a periscope was sighted broad on the starboard bow, distant about 800 yards," it read. "Speed was immediately increased to 20 knots and the ship was headed toward the periscope which about this time disappeared. After a very short period the periscope was again sighted dead ahead, distant about 100 yards. A few seconds later the lookout in the foretop called out that he saw the bulk of the submarine in the water passing aft close to our starboard side. He stated later that he thought we were going to ram it. He could clearly see the submarine and watched it gradually disappear below the surface until it was abaft the deck house. At this moment, a depth charge was let go and it is believed that the depth charge came within the prescribed limit where serious damage results from the explosion."

The commander of the operations office, R. Watkins Grubb, added an indorsement of this report of the O'Brien's skipper stating that about three hours later, the Jessamine passed through a large patch of heavy-smelling oil approximately the same position.

And, further, on June 27, Vice Adm. Lewis Bayley of the British navy, commander in chief at Queenstown, reported to the secretary of the admiralty in London: "This appears to be a case where serious damage to the submarine was very probable. The O'Brien was very skilfully handled and, I consider, deserves recognition. In addition to Jessamine, Cushing (another American destroyer) found a quantity of oil on the surface near this spot, though unaware of the encounter with the O'Brien."

Admiral Sims went to his grave without making the slightest gesture toward rehabilitating a reputation which he had been willing to destroy. This was no question of opinion or interpretation. It was a straight issue of truth or falsehood, honest reporting or wanton fakery.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Hi'ya, Stranger!

(Welcome to Manhattan!)

SO THIS is your first glimpse of New York? You want to see the places you've read about in the column; you want to do the things the motion picture screens have shown you are the RIGHT things to do in mad Manhattan; you want memories to take back home? You've heard that Broadway is the center of a peculiar hysteria, a frenzy of spending and pleasure-seeking that comes naturally in wartime, so you expect the crowds and the flow of easy money—but take it easy, soldier and sailor.

Kilgallen

Here's how.

Start in the morning. Get atop a double-deck Fifth avenue bus and ride to the end of the line—up or down the street, it doesn't matter. Don't look for special landmarks, like the Flatiron building—just look at ALL the buildings and know that ordinary men built these clean gray fabulous monuments. Ordinary fellows just like you, stranger.

Take a walk in Central park. Look at the baby goslings floating cockily behind their fat mamas—it'll make you feel warm inside, and you'll smile, maybe even laugh out loud. Then Central Park South, the street hedging the park. You can look up at the sky-scrapers that make the skyline you've seen in a hundred movies—and when your neck begins to ache look down. Look at the strange assortment of people—old, shuffling ones and youths with freckled faces and pretty girls in their pale summer dresses—feeding the pigeons. Those birds wouldn't be so fat if those odd people didn't think of them every day. But that's New York. Busiest people in the world's busiest city, taking care of the helpless.

You've only spent a thin dime or so, stranger, but you've seen a lot of town.

Walk down Broadway to 44th street. Have your lunch at Sardi's. Don't be ashamed to stare, everybody stares in New York, it's part of us. You might see Raymond Massey at the next table—or Mary Martin. Or someone whose face seems familiar and looks important and probably is. Sit back and enjoy relaxing in your leather seat, for you may be certain that Gertrude Lawrence once sat in that very place or George M. Cohan or Ina Claire.

Now walk up to 149th street and turn west. If you need a shave, get it from Rudy, the barber who shaved all the great bandleaders—Harry James Freddy Martin, Rudy Vallee, Benny Goodman—and loves to talk while he works. When you get through there walk across the street to the Greek Coffee Pot and have a soft drink. You might rub elbows with Irving Berlin and other immortals of Tin Pan Alley for they all have their quickies here.

Not much of a dent in the pocketbook yet—but I know! you're just itching to spend some of that money. Okay, okay. Get that cab then, and tell the driver to head west to the river. Only about 30 cents worth of travel from where you hailed the cab is the Hudson of your school books. And there is the ship you've seen in the newsreels—the old Normandie. Her scars are healing and soon, very soon, she will be on her way to join the ships which only a short time ago filled this river—the airplane carriers, the cruisers and the great ones which are called, simply, battleships. Yes, they were all in this river not long ago, waiting quietly.

HOOVER URGES COOLING OFF AFTER BATTLES

Former President Declares Victory Certain, Makes Definite Proposals.

(By International News Service)

MINNEAPOLIS — Former President Herbert Hoover today declared that "victory is now inevitable" and appealed for a long "cooling-off" period after cessation of hostilities to assure a lasting peace.

Addressing the University of Minnesota and members of the St. Paul-Minneapolis Foreign Policy association, Hoover suggested four steps to be followed in the search for a lasting peace. They were:

1—Reach an agreement, before firing ceases, among all the United Nations that a few leading nations be appointed the joint managers or custodians or trustees of peace, and that there will not be the usual armistice or the usual general peace conference.

2—Agreement among all the United Nations, before victory, setting up provisional peace terms that shall go into effect the moment the firing ceases in Europe and later in Asia.

3—A cooling off period during which the world can consider a solution toward a lasting peace.

4—The last step, after the foundations of peace have been laid, would be to create a world institution to replace the managers or trustees and preserve peace.

In explaining his plan, Hoover said:

"We must have something far more specific and definite than high aims, high ideals, sixty-four dollar words, good intentions, political avoidance or recriminations."

Hoover said the transition period from war to peace should concern itself with providing food for the hungry, restoring order to the world, and resumption of economic production. The elder statesman of the Republican party urged punishment of Axis criminals. He said:

"There must be total disarmament of the enemy. Their leaders must be punished for crimes against mankind. They must return their loot, prisoners and displaced peoples."

Another reason for a "cooling-off" period as outlined by Hoover was that people will be "warweary" and a "period of reaction to isolationism will be inevitable." Headlines from such a conference as that at Versailles after the last war would be "daily arousing a thousand misgivings," he said.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Lillie Oakes, 68, Dies at Home In Bellville.

BELLVILLE — Mrs. Lillie Shrader Oakes, 68, died at her home here Friday after a lingering illness.

She was born in Knox county July 31, 1875.

Surviving are two sons, Curtis J. and Clarence N. Oakes, both of Mansfield; three sisters, Mrs. John Ally of Butler, Mrs. Fred Gordon and Mrs. Aubrey Allen of Mansfield; three brothers, Bert Shrader, John McDaniel, and Ira McDaniel, all of Bellville, eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Snyder funeral home in Bellville until noon Monday. Private services for the family and relatives will be held at the funeral home Monday at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be in Bellville cemetery.

OUTING SEPT. 11

Fish and Game Members Hold Corn Roast at Charles Mill.

Members of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association will hold their annual corn roast at 6:30 p. m. Sept. 11 at the association's clubhouse at Charles Mill lake, it had been decided today.

The festival which annually attracts scores of county sportsmen and farmers, has the atmosphere of a county-wide picnic. Arrangements for the outing are in charge of a committee headed by Richard Warrington. He will be assisted by Roy McGinty as co-chairman.

RECEIPTS DROP

Parking Meters Collect $3,522 During August.

Receipts from Mansfield's 419 parking meters dropped off slightly in August but collections amounted to $3522, second highest monthly "take" this year. The month's total was just $100 below the July figure.

Average daily collections from the meters last month totaled $135.50 as compared with $136.75 per day in June. Each meter produced 32 cents per day last month.

The meter receipts so far this year total $26,034, L. L. Kochenderfer, meter collector, reported.

MOST 37-45ERS CALLED 'UNFIT'

Manpower Officials Say They Wouldn't Do In Army, Scorn Proposal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Manpower officials said today that 65 per cent of the nation's men between the ages of 37 and 45 are "unfit" for army duty, and dismissed as "impossible" a suggestion that they be inducted to decrease the number of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers who will be called for service.

The suggestion was offered by Rep. J. Buel Snyder, (D.,Pa.) who also asserted the armed forces could obtain half a million men from the ranks of "hoboes, bums, wife-beaters, drunks and gamblers."

"The army is not made up of that kind of men and it doesn't want them," one official said.

Snyder's proposal was based on the premise they be used for domestic service as replacements for soldiers who may be shipped overseas.

But WMC spokesmen said army training does not work that way. Some soldiers might be held in this country for a year or 18 months, while others might be shipped aboard after only six months of basic training.

Casualties have been "far below" expectations thus far, they said, but now that Italy has been invaded it is expected the number of men incapacitated will be much larger. Their replacements must be ablebodied men, trained for service under fire, they pointed out.

RITES SUNDAY

Services for Floyd Keyes to Be Held at Waterford.

FREDERICKTOWN — Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Waterford Christian church for Floyd Keyes, 52, who died Friday at his home near Waterford following a stroke.

Rev. J. B. Swain, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in North Fork cemetery.

Survivors include his widow, Hazel; two sons, Leonard of Mt. Gilead, and Gail, Mansfield; a daughter, Retha, at home; his mother, Addie Keyes, Waterford; four brothers, William and Wade, of Mt. Vernon, and Collie and Mortie, Mt. Gilead; four sisters, Mrs. Kenneth Henry, and Mrs. Gladys McDaniel, Fredericktown, Mrs. Bertha Skeen, Mt. Vernon and Mrs. Rosetta Brake, Waterford.

Two Mansfield brothers are wondering if it's just a coincidence, or if Boy Scout camps hold a jinx for them. A few weeks ago while at a scout camp, Dave Stanton fell and broke his arm. Yesterday his brother, John, was at another camp and he ended up by breaking his arm, too. They haven't quite figured it out yet. The boys are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stanton, 141 Marion avenue.

A little Mansfield girl who won a prize for her Victory garden had received praise today of a navy flier and an extra dollar to add to her contest money. Ro Anne Farry, 11, of 122 Western avenue, one of the garden winners at the Western avenue school, is proudly displaying a letter and dollar bill from George Lautermilch, a friend of the Farry family and a naval station student at Corry Field, Pensacola, Fla. Lautermilch said he had read about RoAnne's prize garden and wanted to offer her congratulations for her work in behalf of the nation's food program. Now RoAnne is considering sending her friend a box of cookies.

Ohioans in 1944 will get just one auto license plate rather than two and no window sticker. That's the word from Hal G. Sours, state highway director. The license plates will be of white numerals and letters on a blue background, the reverse of the 1942 plates now on Ohio cars. The one plate for each motorist will replace windshield stickers used this year.

FUNERAL SET

Rites for Orval Eller to Be Held In Columbus Sunday.

Funeral services for Orval Eller, 46, a former Mansfielder, who died Thursday night at the Columbus University hospital, will be held Sunday in Columbus.

Surviving are his widow and two daughters all of Columbus; his mother, Mrs. Arminta Eller; a brother Manley; two sisters, Mrs. Delma Copenhader and Mrs. Francis Shortle, all of Mansfield. He was a veteran of the first World war.

SET TO FREEZE SALE OF MILK

WFA Says Plan to Hold Present Levels Does Not Involve Point Rationing.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Fearful the butter shortage may reach the danger point, the government is setting up machinery to hold milk sales at their current levels, without point rationing.

The new restrictions on milk—the only major dairy product not now under distribution control—were promised by the war food administration last night with this warning:

"Should fluid milk consumption expand still further, production of cheese, butter, evaporated milk and other dairy foods would decline below the amounts necessary to meet essential civilian requirements."

The plan, the WFA made clear, "does not involve point rationing" and does not contemplate "curtailment of milk consumption below recent levels."

The number of dairy cows on farms has increased but production per cow is lower than last year.

PUT BRAKE ON COLLABORATION AT GOP MEETING

Leaders Become Cautious on International Policy Plank at Mackinac.

(By International News Service)

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—Mid-west delegates arriving at Mackinac Island for the opening session of the Republican post-war council Monday, injected a note of caution into preliminary discussions today against going "overboard" on the question of international collaboration.

Although most of them appeared to agree with their more vocal eastern colleagues on the necessity to remove any isolationist tinge from party policy, several of them were plainly distressed at the extremes to which some proposals have gone.

Rep. Roy Woodruff of Michigan, one of the 49 members of the council, was particularly emphatic on this count. He said:

"When I let my mind ponder what happened to us after the last war, I am not for going all-out on this question of collaboration. There is no need to mislead other nations into thinking that this country is going farther than the American people want to go.

"I don't like all this talk of a post-war blueprint. Collaboration is all right, but the American people are not going to support anything that will surrender our independence among nations."

Rep. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, another mid-western delegate, expressed "middle-of-the-road" sentiments. He said he had made a number of speeches in Illinois in recent weeks and found audiences applauding the idea that the United States not go "overboard on this question."

The council, created by Republican National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler to do the spade work on the 1944 GOP platform, is slated to meet for two days starting Labor day. It is Spangler's aim that a resolution will be adopted by the council at least "pointing the way" on the top attitude of post-war foreign policies.

RAMS CROWD

Street Car Jumps Tracks, Kills Woman, Injures 3 Others.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— One woman was dead today and three others in Mount Sinai hospital recovering from injuries received when a streetcar hit another stalled car, jumped the tracks and ran into a crowd of women who were waiting for another car.

Mrs. Fern E. Christman, 42, was fatally injured when her chest and pelvis were crushed in the accident. Miss Helen Milmine, 42, suffered amputation of her right foot as the result of being pinned under the car. Her condition was reported to be "good" today by hospital attaches.

Mrs. Paula Herzburn, 51, and Carol O'Rourke, 45, still were confined to the hospital, but also were reported to be in good conditions.
